Attorneys in Talks Aimed at Reaching A Strike Settlement

By WILL THOMAS

Nearly half of the strike-bound Jefferson Elementary School District's teachers in Daly City and Colma were fired Thursday for failure to report to their classrooms.

Trustees, moving from the Thomas Edison School to the board room in the nearby district administration building when over 700 parents and teachers disrupted their session, unanimously suspended the 227 teachers and directed that they be given 30 days' notice of dismissal.

HAL FINEBERG —San Francisco teacher, Daly City parent: "Children should not be used as leverage . . ."

BONNIE DENMAN — Parent: "What will happen if the teachers are fired? . . ."

DONNA COSTELLO — Vista Mar School parent: "We must have order . . ."

The board had warned striking teachers they would be fired unless they reported for work Thursday morning. Only ten did, and when pickets returned for the sixth day since September 15, the trustees that night took the action they threatened.

While trustees were voting to fire the teachers for absences since September 8, an estimated 600 parents and teachers conducted a noisy meeting at the Edison school. Settlement was demanded and an offer to mediate from Wilson Riles, the state's superintendent of schools was supported.

The scheduled Superior Court hearing on whether to make permanent the order prohibiting the Jefferson Elementary School District teachers from striking has been continued for one week.

Superior Judge Robert D. Miller ordered the hearing continued to September 24 at 9 a.m. before presiding Superior Judge Melvin E. Cohn.

The deputy district attorney said that records of all expenses involved in the strike action are being kept with an eye to possibly filing of a civil suit for recovery of the funds.

The meeting at Edison was surrounded by uneasiness even before it started at 8 p.m. Daly City Fire Department Battalion Chief Wayne Alexander prohibited more than the 415 person capacity in the room, and the crowd continued swelled outside.

Loudspeakers had been installed, but those outside said they could not hear.

They stood in ten rows.

The wind-pushed fog chilled them, in contrast to a smiliar meeting Tuesday, when temperatures ranged in the 90's and the room's load limit was not enforced.

As the school board began its meeting with routine summaries of school faculty and student attendance and of negotiation procedures, the outsiders began to chant, "Let Us In," and there were protests that the taxpayers were not being heard.

A woman who said she was a teacher stood and offered to give up her seat to "a parent outside." That prompted at least half of the audience inside to similarly rise, and the noisy non-violent disruption led the board to leave the stage and reconvene in the boardroom.

Daly City police escorted the trustees—three men and two women—to 101 Lincoln Avenue, which is across a playfield from Edison's auditorium.

Many in the crowd circled the administration building, for a short time.

Recall petitions were circulated prior to the Edison meeting and again in earnest as the trustees met after the disruption in the session attended only by five community members and the press.

Leaders of the Jefferson Classroom Teachers Association said last night that they are willing to negotiate around the clock to settle the dispute. They are seeking renewal of their bi-lateral termed contract, which includes binding arbitration.

The district attorney's office claims the pact may be illegal, and has advised the trustees against signing any documents of agreement with teachers until a decision — perhaps within 30 days — is handed down by Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn.

Trustees cannot agree to the demands, Board Chairman William Schumacher, has said.

He suggested that no strike settlement can be achieved outside the courts.

Housewives Vow to Oust 4 Trustees

By BOB PETERSON

Four demure housewives with fire in their eyes Tuesday morning vowed to recall four of the five trustees of the Daly City Jefferson Elementary School Board.

Target of the recall attempt are Board Chairman William Schumacher and Trustees Edward Tomasello, Albert Collett and Mrs. Dorothy Adams.

Speaking for the women, who call themselves "Concerned Parents For Better Schools," was Mrs. Carolyn Huertes, mother of three school-age children.

She said the reason Trustee Mrs. Beverly Forrester was not included in the recall movement is that she was only recently elected to the board. (Recall requires six months in office.)

When reminded that recall also is not possible for Tomasello, because he was re-elected at the same time Mrs. Forrester was elected, Mrs. Huertes said that if he can't be included in this effort a special recall move would be made to oust him.

However, she hedged on giving a direct "yes" or "no" on whether or not Mrs. Forrester would be included in any later recall effort against Tomasello.

Mrs. Huertes also said the group she represents is in no way connected with the "Concerned Citizens Committee."

The Rev. Ray Howard, chairman of that five-man committee elected by parents to get the board and teachers back to the negotiating table also was in attendance at the press conference.

Reverend Howard said the group he represents is neither against the recall movement, nor officially supporting it. He

S.S.F. Backing Off Mountain Annex?

South San Francisco officials appear to be backing off earlier open efforts to annex San Bruno Mountain.

On Monday, Councilmen reversed a decision thay made at the last council meeting to have the city staff delve into the cost of a study to determine the impact development of the mountain would have on the city.

Councilmen agreed that before any study of any type were instigated, the city would wait on a specific development proposal by Crocker Land Company on what it intends to do on the mountain.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach, who was absent from the last meeting, last night said he was against recommending a feasibility study that would cost the city thousands of dollars.

Dreisbach said he would first like a preliminary feasibility study. He said the matter also should rest with the city's annexation committees. Councilmen Frank Bertucelli and Warren Steinkamp make up that committee.

"They should come back to the council with a recommendation," said Dreisbach. He said he has spoken with one company concerning annexation and received "some rough costs." Dreisbach said one figure was $10,000 for a study.

"The staff has not made a recommendation on San Bruno Mountain, and does not intend to do so at this time," said Dreisbach.

Councilman Frank Mammini explained that at the last council meeting he was making reference to a study that should be done by the city staff.

Bertucelli, who felt he had been side-stepped by the earlier recommendation to do a feasibility study, last night said he hasn't received any proposals from the Crocker interests.

He said he was not against a study, but felt that he and Councilman Steinkamp ought to get together with Crocker and get a definite commitment from them on their plans.

Mrs. Bette Higgins, 701 Hillside Boulevard, heading up a committee said, "You councilmen should be fighting for a regional park, not talking about a 'Save San Bruno Mountain" development."

She said she has seen four presentations made by the Crocker interests. "They aren't being consistent with their road show," she said.

Mrs. Higgins also noted that she has received more than 400 phone calls and letters from persons concerned about possible mountain development. "We can make some tremendous mistakes without a study," she said.

One other resident, August Chevalier, 2600 Leix Way, said he was concerned about where the millions of dollars that would be needed to furnish services to the mountain would come from.

He asked if the issue would come to a vote of the people.

"That's a premature question," said City Attorney John Noonan.

Ads Beckon Cemetery Workers

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Struck cemeteries have bypassed union management and are taking their return-to-work plea directly to striking workers through the use of newspaper advertisements.

The latest advertisement appeared today in a half-page message in a local daily newspaper explaining "What the cemetery strike is all about!"

It lists the "facts" which include how workers at 11 Colma cemeteries walked out on June 3 after the Associated Cemeteries of San Francisco had been in negotiation with Local 265 of the Cemetery Workers' Union since January, 1971.

While the Associated Cemeteries have offered "in excess of $12,000 annually per man" under a proposed three-year contract, the 162 union workers on strike are demanding wages and benefits in excess of $15,000 per year, the "message to the public" portion of the two part ad explained.

"The ($15,000 figure) represents an inflationary cost to the public of over $1,000,000 in excess of the current cost of burial," according to the message.

To the striking employes the message assures, "We are still

Guadalupe Health Center To Get Staff Aid From D.C.

The new Guadalupe Health Center in Daly City on Monday received help from an unexpected source.

Miss Bette Myerson, director of Community Relations for Mary's Help Hospital and a representative of the center, asked the city to aid in staffing the facility.

After conferring with Miss Myerson, city manager David Rowe determined that the city could fill two slots — for a clerk typist and a bus driver — under the Federal Emergency Employment Act.

Daly City has been earmarked some $108,000 per year for the next two years under the new employment aid program.

The monies are to be used to budget jobs immediately instead of shelving needed manpower until city budget allocations are available.

Mayor Bernard Lycett, with the unanimous support of the council, agreed to find a way to assign the two job slots to the Health Center.

Actually the center needs eight positions filled.

Daly City has qualified for 11 slots under the emergency act, including positions for police officers, clerk typists, garage servicemen, police dispatcher, utility man, engineer and building inspector.

Miss Myerson said she was hopeful the county would agree to fund additional staff for the health center located on Mission Street in the city.

Millbrae Moves to End Parked Car Sleeping

Millbrae's proposed law to prohibit anyone from sleeping in parked cars within the city, was expected to be passed by the City Council.

Barring any sudden protest from citizens, the ordinance designed to eliminate use of house trailers, campers, vans, and similar vehicles as spare bedrooms, is expected to win routine approval.

Councilmen have been studying the possibility of such a law since certain residents complained about other neighbors creating a nuisance.

Councilmen are also to view plans for Nationwide Cablevision's main television receiving antenna station, call for bids on narrowing one segment of Broadway, and pass a law regarding parking of commercial vehicles in residential zones.

A street and wine festival October 9 and 10, and the closing of Broadway to permit it, is to be requested by Millbrae's Chamber of Commerce.

'Doublecross' Charged in S.S.F. Action

A representative of 82 employes of the City of South San Francisco, on Monday charged councilmen with a "doublecross" in concluding recent negotiations that provided a 5 per cent across the-board increase for all employes.

Frank Gillis, business representative of Local 1569 of Council 57 of the county's American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSC & ME), said the council's decision ws "an extreme example of a paternalistic attitude." He said his group was not at this point advocating a strike, however.

Gillis was referring to a decision made a little over a month ago. City Mgr. Gale Dreisbach had reported to the council that an impasse had been reached with Gillis.

The labor representative claimed there was no impasse. He attempted at that time to continue negotiating with the council. Instead the council went into executive session and returned with the 5 per cent proposal and said they would not be budged.

Mayor Bill Borba at that time sail the council felt that was the best it could do because of the wage and price freeze of President Nixon, plus the generally poor condition of the economy.

This same line of reasoning was reiterated on Monday.

"We've been double-crossed

Stolen Cards Lead to Jail

Daniel C. Ryan, 32, of Washington, received a three-month sentence in county jail for possession of stolen credit cards.

Ryan was arrested by South San Francisco police August 20 on a routine traffic stop and found to have stolen credit cards in his possession.

The sentence included a three - month suspended sentence, credit for time served and three years summary probation.

Proposal Studied

'Cisco's' Stage Route Plans

"Cisco" Zavaleta has plans to open a new stage route between Daly City and San Jose.

Instead of the horsedrawn carriages that plied the 60-mile route almost a century ago, Cisco intends to offer his patrons a few of the more modern comforts.

Like air conditioning, rather than open canvas flaps. And radios for entertainment in place of smoke signals on a faraway mountain.

"Cisco's" full name is John R. Zavaleta. But his friends know him as "Cisco," owner of the Tri-Terminal Limousine Service.

Zavaleta proposes to cover routes between Pacifica, Daly City International Airport, San Jose Airport, Oakland Airport and Half Moon Bay on a regular basis.

Charges for the service will range from $4 within the SFO area to $12 for persons desiring a ride to certain points in San Jose and Los Gatos.

Concern was expressed by Daly City councilman Louis J. Papan over whether the new service might conflict with existing companies in the area.

Most are owner-operated and represent a substantial investment, Papan explained.

The matter is being represented before the State Public Utilities Commission by San Bruno attorney Maurice K. Hamilton.

Daly City councilmen are expected to study the matter further at a later meeting.

$181,500 Allocated For Jobs Here

Daly City has been allocated $97,800 and South San Francisco $83,700 as their share of a national $200 million fund authorized by a new public service job law.

The monies are part of a program to enable the nation's cities and counties hardest hit by unemployment to put the jobless to work in public service occupations.

This is the second round of allocations; recently, a first allocation of $600 million was made in the same program.

Unlike the first round, the present money is to be spent only in areas that have been stricken with 6 per cent or more unemployment for three recent months consecutively.

The job law opens jobs of police, firemen, and other public services to the unemployed.

The Nixon move to funnel more money into sagging local economies came as the Administration ran into problems on Capitol Hill. The House Ways and Means Committee decided not to back a two-level form of investment tax credit.

said the citizens committee was waiting to see what the outcome of current meetings among attorneys will bring.

"We will hold another meeting Tuesday night (at the Jefferson School) to give our position," he said.

He has 2,100 names on a petition that was sent to State Superintendent of Instruction Wilson Riles, asking him to intervene, Reverend Howard said.

He called the names a "test of the strength of the community" in the effort to end the strike.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Huertes said she was confident the required 20 per cent of registered voters (an estimated 4,600 names) could fill the recall petitions in a matter of weeks. The time limit is six months.

She said her group in no way supports Supt. Frank Greenwood.

"We've watched as our school district has fell apart," she said.

"The leadership (including the superintendent and the board) is incapable of running this district, and is using Daly City to show every district in the state that they can break the teachers.

"They are leaving us with incompetent unemployed rejects, leaving our district educationally and morally bankrupt," charged Mrs. Huertes.

Another mother in the group, Mrs. Mariane Fitzpatrick, said she was of the opinion that Greenwood would "fire himself" because of the board's decision to fire the teachers.

"If he breaks the teacher strike he will be in demand all over the state—at double his salary," she said.

According to Carolyn Kelly, a third mother, the board is sitting and listening only to each other and the superintendent.

"Our goal is to get our children back into school with certificated and accredited teachers, not the romper room nursery school activities we're now experiencing," said Mrs. Kelly.

Although the teachers are not carrying petitions, Mrs. Huertes admitted they did aid in preparing the petitions.

"We have a fantastic group of teachers," she said. "If the teachers weren't worth fighting for we wouldn't have 100 mothers willing to carry petitions."

meeting at Westmoor High School. It lasted 1½ hours.

At the same time, the Jefferson Council of P-TA's was meeting at JESD offices three blocks away.

Supt. Frank L. Greenwood answered questions relating to what the P-TA said was a concern for the health, welfare and safety of the schoolchildren.

Earlier in the day, attorneys for the striking Jefferson Classroom Teachers' Association, California Teachers' Association and the JESD Board of Trustees met in an effort to put together a list of possible facts and issues for presentation to the courts.

There was no agreement. The three lawyers, Peter Galiano, former JESD trustee and now the CTA attorney, Duane Beeson, the JCTA counsel, and Keith Breon, the deputy district attorney assigned to represent the JESD, planned to meet again Tuesday, Breon said.

The meeting among the attorneys was the first step of a proposal coming from a special Sunday board meeting at which representatives of the State Department of Education, Jefferson Council of P-TA's and Concerned Parents were present.

It had been agreed that the attorneys would attempt to agree to the stipulation of certain facts and issues to be attached to the JESD vs. Joan Bent case presently being considered by Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn.

The school board contends that the additions are necessary to obtain a clear-cut decision.

The Bent case involves last year's memorandum of agreement, which included binding arbitration.

If the attorneys can agree, the compilation will be sent back to the trustees and to the teachers, according to deputy district attorney Breon.

There were indications, although no commitments, that teachers might be allowed to return to the classroom if there is mutual agreement to abide by the court's decision.

Leaders of the teachers' group say they won't return to the classrooms without an agreement granting amnesty to the strikers, even if there might be acceptance of stipulated facts and issues.

Additionally, the teachers want to be sure there will be provisions for resolving other substantitive items not yet agreed to by the parties, according to a JCTA spokesman.

Many of the teachers returned to their classrooms, after school hours yesterday to gather up their personal belongings.

"The children of Daly City are being used as pawns by the school board in a sinister crusade to destroy teacher negotiations in California," the president of the JCTA, Anita Jackson, charged yesterday.

Rapping Supt. Greenwood's accusation that teacher strikes will be an "annual September affair", Miss Jackson said, "We're the test-tube for the rest of the state."

She added, "If they can break the teachers in Daly City by firing 227 of them, then they can intimidate teachers everywhere."

The teachers have said they would not return to classrooms without a ratified termed contract to replace the "memorandum of agreement" they won after a pre-school strike last year.

The school board claims that binding arbitration — one of the issues in the nearly two-week strike—takes all decision making power away from the parents, taxpayers and the board as their representatives and gives it totally to the arbiter.

The arbiter by definition is neither an educator, parent or board member, according to a position paper put out by the JESD board over the weekend.

"A decision made by an arbiter must be based upon only what is written in the contract; not upon what is helpful or beneficial to the education of children," the paper stated.

Under a term contract, Greenwood told PTA leaders last night, the trustees would be unable to make many decisions without teacher approval.

He described this as teacher veto power, a phrase which has brought instant cries of "no, no," from teachers at recent meetings.

Greenwood, appearing on a television program yesterday, said the district had worked with binding arbitration for a year under last term's pact.

"Frankly, it stinks," he said.

Meanwhile, clarification on whether or not San Francisco and San Mateo Labor Councils are encouraging union parents to keep their children out of the Daly City schools will be sought by the Jefferson Council of P-TA's.

Several members of the group, which is made up of members of nearly all 21 individual P-TA units in both the Jefferson elementary and high school districts, said they had called the unions to which their husbands belong.

"We hopefully will have written statements from both San Francisco and San Mateo Labor Councils this afternoon," Mrs. Ruth Galindo, president of the Jefferson Council of P-TA's, said Tuesday.

The attitude, they reported, was that unions do not want children involved.

"They are very firmly against the using of children," one P-TA officer said.

The P-TA Council, which voted against taking "sides," as a body, in the dispute between JESD trustees and teachers, said it would disseminate the information received from the labor councils.

The P-TA leaders said their primary concerns were the health and welfare and safety of the schoolchildren.

The P-TA leaders also are to contact the labor councils about the possibility of letting milk for the children be delivered across the picket lines.

The P-TA Council also said it hoped the cafeterias could be permitted to open — the problem being primarily one of getting foodstuffs delivered through the lines, according to Supt. Greenwood.

Nearly 1000 needy children are receiving hot lunches as a result of the strike, Greenwood said. The P-TA and the superintendent agreed the needy children, who are to receive free lunches, must not be named; thus, opening of the entire cafeteria operation is preferable, they said.

Mrs. Galindo said the Milk Driver's Union had referred the Council to Robert Delzell, president of AFT Local 1481, Daly City.

She said she was informed that Delzell had the authority to grant permission for the delivery of milk through the lines.

Principals present at Monday night's meeting indicated the schools to be operating with regular curriculum in a normal fashion with only normal problems, she said.

Parents are being urged, she said, to visit their children's classrooms to determine for themselves the conditions at their schools.

Problems should be reported immediately to the principals, Mrs. Galindo said.

Mrs. Galindo said the P-TA is directing a letter to Supt. Greenwood urging the district to pursue the availability of qualified teachers for these Educationally Handicapped classes which might be unstaffed.

The JCTA in the meantime has announced that supportive telegrams from teachers in the classroom are being received. The unit also says school principals have expressed concern over the loss of instructional continuity through the use of substitutes unfamiliar with sophisticated, planned programs.

Supt. Greenwood cautioned last night against the labeling of substitutes as substandard teachers.

Many of them, he said, were selected from the district's own list of applicants for fulltime jobs and would have been hired if vacancies had existed previously.

State Superintendent Riles wired trustees and the JCTA leadership:

"I am gravely concerned with the impasse that prevails between the Board and the teachers of the Jefferson Elementary School District. I am prepared to make the services of my offices available on a round the clock basis to do everything in my power to work with you in the solution of this conflict.

"I believe that parties on both sides of the current controversy are committed to the welfare of the children invoived but it is now clear that because of honest differences, the welfare of those children is suffering.

"Therefore, I make this plea: That no further action be taken that would escalate these differences.

"I offer the services of my offices; and I am prepared to ask the assistance of the state offices of the CSBA the CTA and the association of California School Administrators to join me in working with you to find an amicable resolution of differences.

There was no board comment.

On Friday, District Superintendent Greenwood issued a prepared statement which outlined his concerns:

"There is no one who regrets the necessity for the school board's action last night more than I do. No one has won a thing, and we have all lost a great deal.

"We are, however, above all else, a nation of laws and there can be no exemptions from those laws by any individual or groups of individuals, including teachers.

"This strike that has been going on since September 8 was done so in defiance of a legal court order and the laws of the State of California. That order was disobeyed.

"I am also of the belief that the public schools belong to the people who support them, and the control of the schools rest with the people who administer them through their duly-elected officials, in this case, the board of trustees. The defiance of law and order has been an annual September affair throughout the state.

"It must be stopped somewhere, sometime, if the schools are to remain free and in control of the people. So, let that time and place be here and now, so that it can be settled once and for all."

in this city," said Gillis. He claimed the council last year had made "inferences" that those employes he represents would get a dental plan this year.

Gillis also claimed, after the meeting, that a verbal agreement was made last year that each employe union would negotiate for what it could get. Other unions were not to get those items at the expense of the first union's efforts.

"We were having numerous meetings with the city manager and progress was taking place," claimed Gillis. "When other organizations agreed to 5 per cent, we were amazed to find that's what we were going to get. We're choking on it," he said.

"Is your group worth more than other departments?" asked Mayor Borba. "This is a time of economics. If we went your route it would mean laying off 20 to 40 people," he said.

Ruling out a strike "for now," Gillis said that among other things he could take "political action." Defined, this means withdrawal of union support for the councilmen.

Gillis said his group will meet within the next few days to determine a definite course of action.

prepared to have an impartial arbitrator decide how much of an increase of wages we should pay you and what additional benefits we should provide you."

In the event the union members reject binding arbitration as a measure to settle the three month old strike, the cemeteries vowed to open other avenues of communications.

The workers themselves had no comment on the newspaper campaign this morning.

Storage of remains awaiting burial throughout the county and San Francisco is becoming an increasing problem—both from a space and health problem, it was learned.

The recent heat wave that struck the area, coupled with continuing warm weather, may force some mortuaries to shift remains which have waited burial the longest into commercial cooling facilities.

There is no exact count on the backlog awaiting burial on the Peninsula.

Estimates range up to 1500.

SSF Girl to Reign

A South San Francisco girl has been chosen Queen Isabella to be crowned at City Hall October 7 by Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and to reign over San Francisco's Columbus Day festivities.

She is Carlene Devincenzi, 18, a brown-haired, green-eyed freshman at the College of San Mateo. She was chosen in a beauty contest with 22 other girls Saturday night.

The runner-up and princess was Carole Borelli, 18, of San Bruno, a Skyline College freshman who won $200. Chosen duchesses in the Queen's court and getting $100 prizes were Anamaria Corrieri, 21, of San Francisco and Cynthia Ann Soffiotto, 17, of Oakland.

National Dog Week --Eye Dogcatcher

The Daly City Council Monday kicked off National Dog Week by studying two matters concerning canines in the city—neuter clinics and an additional dog catcher.

A proposal for a low cost county-operated neuter and spay clinic was submitted by Theodore J. Sorich II, of Menlo Park.

Sorich noted that costs of taking a pet to a regular veterinarian is high and acts as a barrier to providing a widespread workable program for the control of animals.

He cited the Los Angeles public animal clinic where such operations are performed for $17.50.

Records of the clinic disclosed revenues exceed operating costs and the clinic opened less than a year ago.

Sorich's proposal was endorsed by the Peninsula Animal Welfare Society, Inc. (PAWS) which also pointed out the clinic would be self-supporting within a short time.

Mrs. Bettie Adams, legislative chairman of PAWS, said such a facility "is the only answer at present, and for years to come, to the excess cat and dog problem."

Thousands of unwanted dogs and cats roam the county, unwanted, because most people cannot afford the cost of an operation performed by an individual veterinarian, Mrs. Adams said.

This fact was born out in the Society's records over the past two decades, according to Mrs. Adams.

Cost of setting up the clinic would be about $40,000, the council was told.

The council was not in total agreement on the need for the clinic.

Councilman Louis J. Papard expressed favor for the clinic, while Councilman Frank Pacelli voiced opposition.

Mayor Bernard Lycett tabled the matter for further study.

On the second leg of the city's present pet projects, the council was brought up to date on the assignment of an additional dog catcher to be shared with another city.

The new position will cost the city some $10,000 per year.

Scheduling of the new control officer will be staggered in an apparent effort to throw off anyone attempting to figure out his patrol routine.

S.S.F. Youth Advisory Plan Wins Support

South San Francisco councilmen Monday approved in principle a Youth Advisory Council.

Before official sanction is given, however, City Attorney John Noonan is to define more thoroughly the relationship of the group as an arm of the local government.

A plea for recognition was made by Steve Teshara, 20, of 500 Lassen Street. He agreed to a 90-day waiting period, saying he didn't want that postponement to be the start of a series of postponements.

"I don't want to have to go back to my group and convey the idea of a put off," said Teshara.

Councilman Frank Mammini pressed for "simple recognition that the group exists."

Only one voice of opposition came from the audience. Wesley Slade said he was concerned that "this" group would become "the" group and all other groups would have to go through as a direct line to the council. "Is it any different that any other group in the city?" he asked.

Teeshara said the organization he represents has no intention of setting up another layer of bureaucracy. "We're primarily politically oriented. This is what separates us," he said.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach said he was concerned with any possible confrontations the youth organization may have with other city boards and commissions.

"There has been a lot of talk of confrontation in the past decade," said Teshara. "There is alienation and mistrust between the people and their government. We hope to serve as mediators, answer some of the people's questions. You have an opportunity to take advantage of some fine young people to work fo you and the city," he said.

Tehsara said the group looked upon the proposal as an educational program, giving them a first-hand look at the operations of city government. He reminded the councilmen also that 18-year-olds can now vote.

"The park and recreation commission is charged with youth programs of this city," said Dreisbach.. "They're dedicated. We have to be careful this youth group doesn't by-pass this commission."

Teshara admitted that several years ago a community youth council fell apart because they were too recreation oriented. He said his two-month-old organization wouldn't meet that fate.

The purpose of the council, according to its by-laws, is to serve in an advisory capacity to the council on matters affecting or concerning the youth of the city.

Auto Rams SSF House

The serenity of Maynard Ekstrom's Friday evening was shattered at about 10:45 when a car rammed into the side of his house.

It was the second time Ekstrom, of 103 Highland Avenue, South San Francisco, has experienced this situation. The corner house was hit in 1966.

Friday night Samuel Muao, 26, of San Francisco, apparently lost control of his vehicle beginning at the Hillside and Randolph intersection, police said.

The vehicle struck two fences before careening into the wall of the house. No one was injured. Police booked Muao for reckless driving and driving without a license.

S.S.F. Police Plan Auction

A police auction on unclaimed property is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Magnolia Recreation Center, corner of Magnolia and Grand avenues, South San Francisco.

Included in the items to be auctioned are radios, TVs, coin collection, sports equipment, cameras, projectors, kitchen equipment, tools and jewelry.

New O-Zone In San Bruno

San Bruno's city planning commission Monday decided to hold a public hearing on a new kind of zone — a zone where virtually nothing can be built.

A public hearing on enactment of the ordinance to provide for such a zone will be held on Monday, November 1.

It would be called an O-Zone, and would provide for open space uses only. These could include recreation, such as golf courses or picnic areas, or farming.

Major proponent of the zoning is Leon Miller, immediate past chairman of the Planning Commission, who is also a Pacific Heights civic leader. He would like the zoning applied to the San Francisco City Jail site, which is rumored to be considtred for subdivision and development. His proposal is to "prezone" the site — now outside the city limits — so that if it were ever annexed to San Bruno, it would automatically receive the O-Zone.

First, however, the O-Zone would have to be enacted into law.

Surprising Aviation Report—'Stop Growth'

By GEORGE GOLDING

"It may well be time to plan to stop growth, not plan to accept more, or worse yet, encourage it."

That astonishing statement is contained in a report made last week to the Bay Area Study of Aviation Requirements, a group including managers of the San Francisco, Oakland, and San Jose airports.

BASAR, as the group is known, has been meeting for more than two years to forecast the needs of aviation in this area. Set up by George Hansen of San Francisco airport, James Nutter of Oakland, and James Nissen of San Jose, the BASAR group was originally expected to determine such questions as where new airports might be built, or by which means of expansion the existing airports might meet a constantly growing demand for service.

The suggestion that it is time to think of stopping growth is astonishing because it was made by a widely known firm of consulting engineers which has done its part to encourage growth in California. Wilsey and Ham.

It is also surprising because the report was ordered and paid could be expected to consider continuing growth as a factor of for by airport officials who major and desirable importance.

The statement was made in a 10-part summary of the second report in the second phase of a two-year, $520,000 study financed mostly by the federal government's department of Housing and Urban Development.

Airports and other growth, the report says, have already eliminated all but 15 per cent of the most productive area of natural vegetation in North America, have created noise levels that disrupt animal and human life, and have polluted the air. The effects require more careful study, the report says.

"The need for additional airport facilities is largely based on projected population growth.

"This basic assumption that the human population will grow as predicted in the ABAG Regional Plan for 1970 to 1990 is the most fundamental concept to be questioned from an ecological viewpoint.

"It is ecologically vital to realize that no population can continue to increase indefinitely in a given area.

"Therefore it may well be time to plan to stop growth, not plan to accept more, or worse yet, encourage it."

Another report, on effects of noise, is due in two weeks. Two more reports, on economic impact of airports on local communities, and on the capital costs of 11 suggested alternative methods of controlling airport growth, are due later on.

In presenting the report, a spokesman for Wilsey and Ham told ABAG's Bay Area Study of Aviation Requirements, that "we tried to give as much weight to the needs of the red-bellied mouse, as to the needs of San Jose Airport Manager Jim Nissen."

In summary, the report notes:

"Present air quality in portions of the Bay Area is below that desired for a healthy environment.

"Any increase in air pollution from direct or indirect causes will probably increase the adverse effects on the lives of people and other living things in the Bay Area.

"Present noise levels from aircraft already disrupt the well-being of many individuals. Sensitive animal species are also possibly adversely affected.

"Any increased noise levels will no doubt make detrimental inroads on the quality of life in the Bay Area.

"Continued re-evaluation of the levels of air and noise pollution is vital for the health and welfare of the urban ecological system.

"Only 15 per cent of the salt marsh area of San Francisco Bay still remains. It represents the most fecund type of natural vegetation in North America. As such, it is highly sensitive to environmental impact.

"Present and projected land use patterns in the Bay region indicate a need for improved land use policies and controls, in order to achieve greater compatibility with the natural environment.

"Lowland areas which have been heavily utilized for airport development in the past, contain plants and animals which are very sensitive to disruption by aviation development characteristics.

"Analysis of the effect of commercial airport activity levels upon adjacent land uses in the Bay region revealed certain observed and inferred relationships. Growth in the air transportation industry has greatly altered land use patterns on and adjacent to airports. Other industries indicate varying degrees of relationship to the development of aviation facilities."

Concluding that no one really knows enough about what we are doing to know whether or not we should be doing it, the experts suggested "a methodological approach to the evaluation of aviation impact on the physical environment and land use is necessary.

"A need for a comprehensive 'social value' study of Bay region residents for better evaluation of environment factors, was devealed."

Public to View New Hearing Aid

A new compression hearing aid that amplifies low signals and compresses strong signals will be displayed this month at the office of Custom Hearing Aid Service.

If you suffer from hearing problems and have searched for an answer, you may find it here. The all new compression hearing aid controls those too loud noises and lets you hear what you want to hear in crowds, in church, in traffic, noisy restaurants, and particularly in group conversations.

Although much expense has been incurred in the development of the compression hearing aid and many years of research envolved, it is moderately priced to the consumer and can be fitted to almost all hearing losses.

Full information can be obtained at 1130 Broadway, Burlingame, Ca.

New Company Submits Lowest Parking Bid

A new parking lot company is the apparent winner in bidding for a management contract to operate the public parking service at San Francisco International Airport.

Airport Parking Management, a joint venture of San Francisco Parking Inc., and Northwest Parking, was reported by airport staff members to have submitted the lowest of 10 bids opened yesterday.

Second lowest was said to have been offered by Goodlett, Luster and Laurent, the black-run firm which now operates the airport parking garages on a concession agreement.

Goodlett, Luster and Laurant's existing contract expires October 15. The new contractor will take over on that date if approved by the Airport Commission September 21 after review of the bids.

The commission already has approved replacing the concession type of contract with a management type of contract, reportedly, because it is more flexible during a period of prolonged construction operations.

Dr. Carlton Goodlett, head of the firm which now operates the garage, claims that the entire move is an attempt to "get the garages out of the hands of the blacks."

Dr. Goodlett's firm submitted the second-lowest bid among those opened yesterday, offering to run the parking garages for $7 out of every $1,000 handled.

Airport Parking Management offered to do the job for $5.97 of each $1,000.

President of the new firm is Nicholas C. Leonoudakis, head of San Francisco Parking Inc., which operates 27 lots and two garages in the city, serving approximately 7,100 cars daily.

Vice president is his brother, Stephan C. Leonoudakis, an attorney who is a member of the Golden Gate Bridge board of directors and who is a law partner of State Assemblyman John F. Foran and Leo McCarthy.

Airport management spokesmen have denied any anti-black intent in the projected change.

They have admitted that the parking garage has been investigated because too numerous complaints from the public. On August 25, it is reported, a suit was filed in San Francisco Superior Court, seeking to recover from the Goodlett group some $100,000 that parking garage employes are alleged to have taken improperly.

Complaints about airport parking garage service are not now and were common even before the Goodlett company took over from Barrett Transportation last year.

Carr Agrees

'Keep 747 Off Short Runways'

Airports Manager James P. Carr on Sept. 8 said that big aircraft, such as the Boeing 747, should be kept off the shorter runways at San Francisco International Airport, "unless we can increase their effective length."

Carr was responding to questions about runway length, following a meeting of the San Francisco Airports Commission.

He said a San Mateo Times reporter had published a column this last weekend, stating that the big planes should be banned from the airport's shorter runways when heavily loaded.

Carr said he agreed. The reporter, he said, "did what I have done, went out to the airport and watched them take off.

"Unless we can do something to increase the effective lengths of the runways, we should keep them off."

(It was a Boeing 747 which took off on one of the airport's shorter runways, that clipped a landing approach guide on take-off, and crashed landed two hours later, late in July.)

Carr said he believes "something can be done" to increase the effective length of Runways 1-Right and 1-Left, and said he expects to have an announcement "within a few weeks." The Airports Director said he has been "working with engineers up at Boeing," and with other experts, to see if take-off performance of the big planes can be altered.

He has also been listening to various suggestions for modifying the blast fence that protects Bayshore Freeway from jet exhausts. If the blast fence were more effective, he said, planes could start their take-off roll as much as 1100 feet sooner, and thus increase their chances of successful departure.

"We've also been talking about a possible droppable blast fence," he said.

That proposal has been offered before, but never found technically or financially feasible. The idea is to install a series of blast fences, which would pop up into position behind each jetliner as it proceeds down the runway.

Petition Sought on Freeway

The Pacifica branch of the Committee to Oppose The Extension of 380 is spearheading a drive to collect signatures on a non-legal "People's Petition."

The petition, addressed to the Pacifica city council, carries information about the effect the 380 freeway extension from San Bruno to Pacific would have on Pacifica.

It asks the Pacifica council members for a new policy of open space preservation and a reversal of an earlier support for the freeway.

In addition, the petition answers questions specifically of interest to Pacificans. The answers also are directed at all residents of the county.

One question, for example, goes into population projection figures used by the highway backers. The growth of population in San Mateo County, however was recently reported slowing to a trickle.

This fact, according to freeway opponents, makes the stated need for an eight-lane "growth freeway" questionable.

These same opponents say new figures, new attitudes and a new understanding of ecology make it imperative that elected leaders take a new look at old decisions.

Alternative To Property Tax Urged

State legislation to replace the property tax as the major means of financing schools has been urged by Chairman James V. Fitzgerald of the County Board of Supervisors.

Fitzgerlad has sent letters to the county's state legislators uring them to get to work on the problem in light of the recent ruling by the California Supreme Court that property tax funding of school costs is unconstitutional.

The supervisor noted that $118 million of the $189 million, or more than 62 per cent, of property taxes collected in San Mateo County goes for schools.

"I think the problem for the local agencies," Fitzgerlad said in the letter, "is to develop new methods of producing funds so that we can improve the environment with such things as mass transportation, scenic highways, better sewer plants, and purchased of open space where money is the key problem solver!

"These are local problems that can be solved by local dollars if the money can be made available. Elimination of the local school property tax would go a long way to doing just that.

"I fully support the concept of adequate school funding for every child in Caifornia and the concept that every child should have the right to an equal education. Elimination of the local school property tax as a revenue source would be a big step forward in providing equal funding and equal educational opportunities."

The Supreme Court decision was based on a concept that equal education cannot be obtained when tax support is unequal

Bruno Mount Talk Delayed

A "sphere of influence" hearing for San Bruno Mountain was postponed for six months Wednesday by the Local Agency Formation Commission on the request of the South San Francisco City Council.

The hearing, which had been scheduled for November 3, was put over to May 3 to give the city more time to complete an economic feasibility study of the possibility of annexing the entire mountain.

Spheres of influence are established by LAFCO to serve as guides when considering annexation proposals. South San Francisco has asked that the southern part of the mountain area be placed in its sphere but is considering annexation of the entire property.

Officials of the Crocker Land Company, in announcing plans for development of Visitacion Rancho on the mountain, said they would consider annexation to the various cities that surround the 3,600-acre property — South San Francisco, Daly City, and Brisbane.

Terra Nova Topics

By Rockie Montenegro

School has started again, despite the fact that three new portable classrooms haven't arrived yet because of the steel strike. They are expected in mid-October.

Meanwhile, the 1,687 Tigers (TN's largest enrollment ever) continue to roam the newly polished halls, get into the hang of slamming their lockers again, and (if they're lucky enough to belong in the upper classes) enjoy the timeless September sport, "Harrassing Freshmen."

Louis Pacini and the advanced journalism class are finally getting their long awaited dark room. Mr. Kambic can be seen in the German room with his new handle-bar moustache. Miss Pitto and Mr. Whalen are back from their exciting summers in Africa and Fiji, respectively, and Mrs. Kampe is enthusiastically taking over her new job as drama teacher while Mr. Campbell is in the Far East on sabatical.

There have been nine new members to Terra Nova's teaching and clerical staff. Introducing (not necessarily in order of importance):

Mr. Lionel Cleary, Spanish; Mr. Charles Coil, social science; Mrs. Joyce Ford, English; Miss Catherine Graves, math; Mr. Robert Guerrero, woodshop; Mr. Montague Iwanaga, woodshop and American studies; Mr. Roy Kaylor, math; Miss Michele Musy, English; Mrs. Janet Wherry, science.

Renovations to TN's physiognomy include an expanded auto shop also featuring Vicki Moseley, first TN girl to win the battle of the sexes and the right to gain entrance into the previously all-boy course), changing the multi-use room into an auxiliary cafeteria, and the addition, of shiny new outdoor barbecue tables. The attendance office has been moved to what was formerly the faculty room, managing to confuse the seniors as well as the freshmen. Reasons for the re-location were overcrowded conditions in the main office and an attempt to build up the repore and communication between the attendance staff and the school nurse by placing them in the same room unit.

SSF Offers Dance Classes Wednesdays

The bossa nova, tango and discotheque, along with foxtrot, cha cha, rumba and waltz are the dances to be taught every Wednesday evening at Orange Memorial Park Recreation Center in South San Francisco.

The fee for the ten-week series is $12 per couple. Registration will be taken at the South San Francisco Park and Recreation Department offices, Magnolia Recreation Center, Grand and Magnolia Avenues, today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., and tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Irene Weed Smith, a professional dance teacher, recreation specialist, a member of Dance Masters of Chicago and California, California Parks and Recreation Society, and the AAUW is instructor. She

A Housing Talk For D.C. Seniors

Wallace will present his company's plan for a senior citizens' residence and will answer questions concerning this proposal.

This meeting is open to all interested citizens and organizations.

A Cheese Party

"You're not going to write about cooking on a hot day like this, are you?"

"No."

Today's subject will be cheese, not only because they're having a Bay Area Cheese Festival, but because a representative of the Milk Advisory Board came to see me Thursday. She gave me lots of free things and introduced me to the lovely 1971 California Dairy Princess, Cindy Machado. Miss Machado smiled at me.

So today's subject will be cheese.

Among the stacks of information now at the instant disposal of this reporter is an outline of how to give a wine and cheese tasting party. The arrangements, they say, are simple.

Limit guests to eight or ten and serve four or five wines and an equal number of cheeses. Allow about a half pound of cheese and a half bottle of wine per guest. Each person can use the same wine glass for all wines, but provide a pitcher of water for rinsing out the glasses between each tasting.

White and rose wines should be chilled about three hours in the refrigerator. Red wines are served at about 65 degrees and should be opened an hour before serving to give them a chance to breathe.

Cheeses should be served at room temperature. Remove more robust cheese from the refrigerator two or three hours before serving. Milder types can be taken out one hour in advance.

Keep each type of cheese on a separate tray. Robust cheese flavors should not mingle with those of mild cheeses. Cut cheese into bite-sized pieces just before serving and spear with toothpicks or serve chunks of cheese with cheese knives for a more casual approach.

Each person pours his own wine, cuts a piece of cheese and tastes them separately and together. It is also traditional to have cubes of French bread or an assortment of crackers to eat between tastings. This is done to clear one flavor away before tasting another combination of wine and cheese.

Tasters should go from mild to sharp cheese and from light to robust wines. Below are some traditional wine and cheese companions preferred by most people over the years, but the fun is in the experimenting so tell your guests to find their own favorite combinations.

Mild-flavored cheeses such as Muenster, Jack, Provolone and Swiss go well with white dinner wines such as California Sauterne, Chablis, Riesling, Pinot Chardonnay or Dry Semillon. Rose wines, being rather delicate in flavor, are classed with the whites for this purpose.

The medium-flavored cheese types such as Fontina, Camembert, Port du Salut, Gouda and Smoked Cheddar are compatible with the red dinner wines such as California Burgundy, Claret, Pinot Noir, Zinfandel and Cabernet Sauvignon.

Dessert wines, enjoyable with all cheeses, are especially suited to accompany the full-flavored cheeses. Parmesan, sharp Cheddar, Gorgonzola, Stilton and Brie cheeses are compatible with California Port, Sherry and other dessert wines.

COTTAGE-BARBECUE DIP

1 cup cottage cheese
¼ cup barbecue sauce
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated onion
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon celery salt

Membership committee women Mrs. Leonard Berglund and Mrs. George Plichcik said they plan to have all students return their membership envelopes to the high school main office as soon as possible.

Students benefit from dues, since this is the main source of P-TA income used for scholarships and student aid at Westmoor High School.

Mrs. Hal Fox, president, said this is an opportunity for students to work with the P-TA, not only to make the drive a success but to increase community awareness of both P-TA and student activities at Westmoor High School.

50th Anniversary For Colma Couple

Colma citizens Mr. and Mrs. John Olcese were surprised Aug. 29 at a fiftieth anniversary celebration given in their honor by their family at the New Southern Restaurant in South San Franciso.

Immediate family, relatives and long-time friends were seated at decorated banquet tables. Large, fresh floral centerpiece arrangements consisting of yellow roses, gladiolas, dahlias and chrysanthemums were set in each table center.

At each place setting was a gold plastic champagne glass filled with gold covered wedding candies, each trimmed with two white and gold lined wedding bells, tied with white ribbons over a gold nylon net bow.

After the champagne social hours a chicken and roast beef dinner and trimmings were served 70 guests. At the table, a toast was offered to his parents by John Olcese, Jr.

A large-three-tiered wedding cake topped by a numeral "50" was cut by Susie while several snap shot pictures were taken. On the cake table an original framed photograph of the 50-year bride and groom with the wedding attendants was displayed.

Members of their immediate family present were Mr. and Mrs. George Schenone and daughters Linda and Janet; and children Marilyn and Stephen and Mr. and Mrs. John Olcese, Jr. and children John, Jr. and Jeanie. Twenty Olcese relatives were in attendance, the rest being old-time friends and a few new ones.

An old time Colmaite and friend of the large Olcese clan, Mrs. John Moresco, presided as mistress of ceremonies and read the 50 year old item printed in the local paper in 1921, namely the Daly City Recod.

NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

I want to start off with the correct mixing method of the Sugar Cookie Squares featured last week.

SUGAR COOKIE SQUARES

½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
2 beaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup light cream
1 cup flour
Pinch salt
1 teaspoon baking powder

Cream the half cup shortening and one cup brown sugar. Beat in the two eggs and one teaspoon vanilla. Add the fourth cup cream and mix well. Sift together the one cup flour, pinch salt and one teaspoon baking powder. Add to creamed mixture and mix well.

Bake in greased 9x12-inch pan in 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Cut in squares and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

A fancy way to serve hamburgers is always a welcome addition to our recipe files. These hamburgers with a Sauerbraten sauce make a very tasty dish.

SAUERBRATEN HAMBURGERS

1½ pounds ground round
1 Tablespoon instant minced onion
1 egg
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind

In a medium mixing bowl combine the one and one-half pounds ground beef, one tablespoon instant onion, one egg, one and one-half teaspoons salt, fourth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth cup fine bread crumbs, half cup milk and half teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix lightly and shape into six patties. Brown in a small amount butter in skillet. Remove patties and pour off fat.

SAUCE

1 Tablespoon butter
1 Tablespoon white vinegar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ cup brown sugar
Dash ground cloves
1 bay leaf

Place the tablespoon butter in skillet, add the one tablespoon white vinegar, fourth teaspoon ginger, fourth cup brown sugar, dash ground cloves and bay leaf. Mix well and bring to a boil. Add the browned patties, cover and simmer about 30 minutes (or until hamburgers are cooked to your taste). Turn once or twice during simmering and baste with sauce.

Along with the fancy hamburgers you might like to serve some fancy new potatoes.

CHEESE NEW POTATOES

2 pounds unpeeled new potatoes
2 teaspoons salt
¼ cup half and half
1 cup grated American cheese
Dash pepper

Cook unpeeled potatoes until tender. Drain and peel. Slice into ½-inch slices in lightly buttered shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with the two teaspoons salt and pepper to taste. Top with the one cup grated cheese. Pour fourth cup half and half over all. Bake in 325-degree oven for 25 minutes until lightly browned. Serves 6.

Here's an idea for a quick and easy dessert to finish off the meal.

CHUCK'S DESSERT:

Slice pound cake in one-half to three-fourth inch slices and place on cookie sheet. Broil until golden on each side. Top each slice with a scoop of marble ice cream. Dribble chocolate sauce over all. Decorate with whipped cream or whipped cream substitute.

THE MARQUEE

Fancy cameras, classy cars, sporty dudes, long hairs, wine jugs, sunshine, smiling and clapping policeman, blacks, whites, leather caps, straw hats, dashikis, laughing, hooting, stomping, dancing, happiness, fantastic music all day and most of the night . . . the three day Monterey Jazz Festival.

How sweet it was.

Ushers wore red roses, patrons tucked them into their weird and wonderfully assorted costumes, Festival Director Jimmy Lyons presented them to the female vocalists and 31,000 jazz fans paid a record revenue at the box office for the fourteenth annual event that had a red floribunda rose named Jazz Fest in its honor.

A tribute to Louis Armstrong got Friday night off to a flying start with Dizzy Gillespie and Roy Eldridge in trumpet duets.

The Dave Brubeck Quartet tried to compensate for the absence of Paul Desmond by featuring Gerry Mulligan on baritone sax. They all played together like they grew up on the same block and Alan Dawson's drums stole the set.

Carmen McRae polished off a moody medley of the old Billy Holiday favorite, "Livin' For You," "Days of Wine and Roses," and "Impossible." Twenty fresh-faced, bright-eyed youngsters from the McMinnville Twilighters, a swing choir from Oregon, appeared to back her on several tunes including "Something in His Style."

The evening progressed from good to better when 17 musicians including Gillespie, Louis Bellson and guitarist Joe Pass did the latter's composition "Basso Bravo" with Ray Brown on bass. To show homage to this fine musician, the group did a speciality written for him titled "Something For Pass."

Blues shouter Big Joe Turner had the Saturday afternoon crowds singing along with "Nighttime Is the Right Time" only 10 minutes after everyone got settled into their seats. Before he had finished "Get out of Bed and Wash Your Face and Hands," they were dancing in the aisles.

Sweet-faced Mary Lou Williams came out of retirement and played her heart out in a long piano set, bringing back the days of the late Forties when she wrote and played for Benny Goodman. Her "Caravan" interpretation followed by the jazz classic, "St. Louis Blues," kept the crowds clammering for encores.

Saturday afternoon brought other highlights in its "Kansas City Revisited," a tribute to the jazz mecca of the 1930's and the musicians who made it so.

Big Jay McShann, famed KC pianist and the last of that era to recall those days, featured the incredible playing of Claude Williams on amplified violin in such well received standards as "Tenderly," "12th Street Rag," and "After You've Gone."

With the addition of blues singer Jimmie Witherspoon, patrons stood up on their metal folding chairs and shook and shouted along with him. It was a great moment for extroverts.

It was like digging out your old 78 records and reminiscing about the good old days when blind vocalist Al Hibbler crooned out "Do Nothing 'Til You Hear From Me."

But what makes the Monterey festival so unique is its unscheduled surprises, the spontaneity and musical rarity that occurs with giants on a stage, meeting again for the first time in decades, all joining together in song or set that will never happen again in a lifetime.

Al Hibbler, Big Joe Turner and Jimmie Witherspoon closing the afternoon in song together is just such a special event.

By Saturday night, everyone was mellow on one thing or another.

The sweetest sounds of the festival came from the opening selections by saxaphonist John Handy seated cross-legged with Ali Akbar Khan playing a hauntingly beautiful group of Indian themes done with jazz styling. The burning incense pots helped set the stage for a total shift of musical identity and perception.

Tabla improvisations were provided by percussionist Zakir Hussain. The only female musicians to invade the male dominated festival stage were Susan Rosenbaum and Alvina Quintana who played the Indian "drone" instrument, tamboura.

It was a long way from Kansas City, but no less incongruous, than Eric Burdon of The Animals being invited on stage to join blues stylist Jimmie Witherspoon in a rousing duet of Burdon's piece "Soledad."

The musicians during all five concerts wore suits, ties and were noticeably clean shaven and neatly shorn. Burdon stood out in sweat shirt and straggly beard and long hair, but his contribution was a righteous link to the kind of dues today's musicians and composers owe to the men who were featured this weekend.

Bobby Brookmeyer kept the energy level high in the swing big band arrangements of the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis contingent. They began with a boogaloo titled "Us" and ended with the big voice shouting of DeDe Bridgewater in a set that mellowed down with "My Rainy Day Is Here."

An abalone that refused to be digested from a nameless Monterey restaurant prevented me from hearing the high school and college jazz bands on Sunday afternoon.

Thank God we didn't wait until Norman Granz was dead to pay his vast contribution to jazz proper recognition. It was his Jazz At The Philharmonic concerts that many of us grew up on and learned what good playing was all about. It started in Los Angeles in 1943 and dedicated itself to bringing eminent jazz soloists together for development of individual creativity.

By 1957 it was over.

Granz flew to Monterey from his home in Europe and was given a trophy cast with the chair and trumpet logo of the festival. A $1,000 grant in aid to a deserving young musician will be awarded every year in his name.

For four hours the music unfolded with taste and integrity to an art form still at its zenith. Clark Terry's trumpet, Zoot Sims on tenor sax, Benny Carter on alto sax, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis on funky tenor sax, Bill Harris on trombone, and the earlier giants of the weekend happily converged on "In a Little Spanish Town." With Carter tugging at my heart strings on a personal favorite "I Can't Get Started" there wasn't much more to move by the time Ray Brown wrecked what was left with a bass solo of "Tenderly."

One of the major contributors throughout was the graceful and clear toned guitar playing of Mundell Lowe, whose accomplishments would be worth a separate column.

Oscar Peterson sat down and played such fistfuls of chords and runs it sounded like two pianos and four hands. I especially liked his "Younger Than Springtime." He drives so hard into those ivories, you fear they'll fly off.

His boogie beat in the left hand for that classic "Ain't No Body's Business But My Own" brought the capacity crowd to its feet for the umpteenth time.

Yet there was more. And it was the capper. Sarah Vaughn walked out and took over. Her piano player, Willie Mayes, shared the bench with John Lewis, who minus his Modern Jazz Quartet, doubles admirably as pianist and musical director of the festival.

WHAT HAPPENED AT ATTICA? The State Prison uprising followed by one week a column published here detesting such process for settling prison gripes and disagreements with police.

And now some folks are pointing the finger of blame, ala the Witch Hunts of Salem, here, there and everywhere. First they say it was the guards' fault, because of their treatment of the inmates. Next it was the riotbreakers' fault, because, after all, they seem to have fired the guns that mowed down the hostages and inmates. And lastly, it was all our faults for creating such a sick society. Sick society, I agree, but to these fingerpointers I say balderdash. Actually, if I could get away with it I'd say a lot more than balderdash!

WHOSE FAULT WAS IT? The usual plodding investigations will now be run over the next few months, with everybody and his brother taking shots at the answers. These reports will cover most everything — from alleged brutality of the guards to charges the prison officials are inept in their handling of prisoners. Somewhere, they will find a scapegoat. Oh, it will be a thorough investigation. Even the Holiday Hotel chain couldn't conduct a more exhaustive inspection. Perhaps it might be a good idea to turn over the running of our prisons to the Holiday people. Some of the proposals asked by today's prison inmates fall only slightly short of room service and wall-to-wall carpets.

ABOUT THE ONLY THING we can say for sure is that 41 people died in a hail of gunfire at Attica State Prison last week. If it's important we will concede they might even have been shot by the riotbreakers. To us, it ISN'T important who shot them. What is important is who set the scene for this bloodbath.

Find the persons who conjured up this mad scheme and you have the parties responsible for the killings.

Too simple?

Supporters of the riot have equally simplified the causes. They merely point at Governor Rockefeller and call him "murderer."

A couple of relative questions we might ask are: Who gave the inmates at Attica, or San Quentin a negotiating clause in their sentences? Their means of communications was supposed to be their attorneys and through the courts. We could repeat all sorts of harsh statements overheard since the two recent tragedies (we call them that because people lost their live senselessly) occurred. These statements include methods to "deal" with the inmates, plus San Francisco sheriff Matthew Carberry's old chestnut telling the world "we aren't running a hotel here."

AFTER ALL THE DUST SETTLES we still have a couple of questions that will probably return to plague us: How did those guards compromise their positions and what the heck has been done to plug the hole?

FLASHY FLASH — Here we've some more speculations on upcoming County races in spring 1972. Ask County Supervisor (Mrs.) Jean Fassler if she might take a crack at that open Assembly District seat IF Leo Ryan runs for Congress (and he WILL, mark these words) and she will not REALLY rule it out. And if she goes for the Assembly, will Daly City Councilman McRobert Stewart be quick to jump into the supervisorial race? You can believe it, friend.

WANTA SAVE MONEY and help President Nixon keep the lid on the freeze? Then run, don't walk, up to Charlie White's lumber shed on Junipero Serra in D.C. Friday night about 7:30 p.m. for some free home improvement lessons. Each week is a different subject. Just enrolled the Little Woman myself.

PLUGS PART TWO — Pete Markovich says that signups are slow for the 15th Annual Divoteer Open to be held at the trickly Franklin Canyon Golf Course in Rodeo. October 6 is the deadline and only a limited number can play (at $20 per for green, cart and din-din).

WITH THE COLMA cemetery strike entering its fourth month, our question is: Why hasn't the City of Colma entered into the dispute in an attempt to settle it? Why let San Francisco's Mayor Joe Alioto grab all the credit. There are at least two council members not employed by cemeteries, and their efforts might help. Seems to me that the strike is financially hurting the city's cemetery-oriented businesses. Or doesn't anyone care?

THERE'S A DEFINITE return to good, old-fashioned patriotism in this country. Personally saw it at the Nugget Hotel and Casino while watching the Liberace show last week.

A new female bundle of laughs named Faye McKay brought applause with a song written by Liberace for Red Skelton all about Old Glory (We salute you"). But the real show-stopper was Lee, himself, when he came marching out wearing red, white and blue hotpants and twirling a baton.

Rare Lost Golden Eagle Is Rescued in Pacifica

Lost for two and one-half weeks after someone cut him loose from his perch, "Orphan," a six-month old Golden Eagle was found by the Peninsula Humane Society in Pacifica and returned to his home at the San Francisco Zoo Thursday.

The Zoo's volunteer trainer, Dennis Bennion, was glad to find "Orphan" in relatively good condition, relieved to have found him at all. "His weight dropped from 7½ pounds to 5 pounds. I doubt that he ate very much these last few weeks; he's never learned to hunt," he said.

"Orphan" was picked up by Miguel Castellanos, a driver for Coastside Scavenger of Pacifica on Wednesday when the eagle collided with a company truck at a disposal site in Daly City. "Orphan" evidently was confused by the truck's headlights and crashed into it. Realizing the bird was an unusual one, the driver brought it back to Pacifica where company employees tried to feed it carrots, spaghetti and other scraps. Finally Coastside's President, Mario Torrigino, called the Peninsula Humane Society.

Humane Officer Walt Callahan was dispatched to pick up the mysterious bird and whisked it to the Humane Society's Coyote Point Shelter. "The eagle seemed to be missing "Orphan", and after inspection seemed to be in fairly good shape," said Peninsula Humane Society General Manager, Russ Turver. "We called the Zoo and "Orphan" was homeward bound."

Ironically, "Orphan was spotted last week by a Zoo employee at Crystal Springs Reservoir, but the eagle couldn't be lured down from the sky. San Francisco Water Department's Harry W. Tracy, Manager of the Water Purification District pitched in to help, though. "He had his men patrol the area in a constant search for "Orphan." Using two-way radios, they were ready to notify us in an instant should he be spotted again. He wasn't. And, he was just about given up for lost until I saw him today," Bennion added.

"Orphan's" uncanny knack for survival was learned when his parents were shot by hunters in Nevada. He was the lone survivor in a nest that contained two dead eaglets. And, he's currently fighting for survival on a larger scale as a member of one of the world's quickly vanishing species. Paul Maxwell, zoologist for the city's Recreation and Park Department, estimates that there are only about 100 pairs of Golden Eagles left in the California wilderness areas.

"Orphan" was participating in a unique program instituted recently by the City's Zoo to improve the chances of their survival. "We're trying to rehabilitate and re-release some of our large birds, particularly endangered ones, hoping that it might help them increase their diminishing populations," said Maxwell.

The birds, eagles and hawks, are kept in a wooded area with perches and access to the ground. They're not in cages and they're being taught to fly with a trout line attached to their legs. A piece of raw meat and a shrill whistle brings them back to their trainer's arms. "This is step one on their way back to their natural habitat, and it eliminates damage to their wings when they attempt to fly in cages," said Bennion.

Municipal Boundaries Becoming Artificial

The changing face of America has profoundly affected the requirements of local government. With growth and population shifts, existing municipal and district boundaries have become artificial barriers to rational problem solving. Old lines, once significant, now draw walls through suburbia, and cities, cities, school districts, creation districts, and reclamation districts often find themselves powerless to meet modern responsibilities.

Such problems as mass transit, pollution and shoreline protection can only be attacked in battlegrounds that are of sufficient size. Government, responding to this reality, has evolved a new breed of public agency. These have broken through the shackles of early geography and wield power of a scope sufficient to get things done.

Unfortunately, this new way of government has grown in a strange way. In the rush to meet public needs, courts and legislatures have ignored the people's rights and have spawned a novel kind of public body that is beyond the effective reach of voters. In a word, these agencies are undemocratic, and as they expand and proliferate, government of, by, and for the people may become government of, by and for the annointed and appointed.

Last month the Supreme Court of the State of California decided that the laws establishing the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency were constitutional. Consideration of the agency and of the decision (People ex rel Younger vs County of El Dorado) discloses the nature of such regional entities and the dangers involved in the present method of their formation.

On the political level such a Regional Planning Agency makes sense unless we intend having Tahoe become our own Lake Erie. Furthermore, a more compelling case can be made for such a political structure when two such states (California and Nevada) are concerned. Nonetheless, the controlling principles and practices involved will have broad application and should cause concern among those devoted to representative government.

First, the ten members of the governing body of the agency are once removed from the will of the people. A complicated formula provides for their appointment, but no member is to be elected. Each of those serving will be responsive to his own particular constituency (e.g. an appointing Board of Supervisors or Governor) but none will ever have to face an election.

Second, California Elections Code Section 5150 provides that all districts and regional agencies formed under laws that do not provide election procedures are excluded from initiative, referendum, and recall provisions of the Elections Code. The Agency and its members are beyond the reach of the people in another way.

Third, the court held that if members of an official body are elected, the one man-one vote rule applies, but that its protection is not available if they are appointed. The court made it plain that the nature of activities to be performed makes no difference and the fact that members were to perform legislative duties was immaterial.

Fourth, such bodies, put together on what amounts to an ad hoc and ex officio basis, find members much more concerned about other affairs. Thus, too much reliance is placed upon staff, and servants of public servants come into executive control of such entities.

The overwhelming importance of staff can reach absurd proportions. Consider Assembly Bill 1057 which would establish a San Francisco Bay Area Council to function as a conservation and development agency. Its proposed board would be composed of 83 members. Merely calling the roll would be such a time consuming and exhausing process that important business would be conducted on the staff rather than the board level.

The Tahoe situation is nothing new. Many similar public bodies are now in operation (the San Francisco Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission is but one example). The recent case articulates already established rules under which the courts have sought innovation and action at the cost of sound democratic structure and of representative government.

The danger is that of continuing delegation of power to men and bodies that have little responsibility to the people. If we are not watchful, these could become the location of the real power of local government. We, the people, would then be managed and directed by the super plans of a coming generation of super planners.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Post:

I see the I.R.A. chief was detained on entry to the U.S.

It seems that Mr. Joe Cahill was convicted for murder of a police officer in 1942.

If my mind hasn't played tricks on me, it seems that I read somewhere a police officer was murdered in California at one time.

Maybe Mr. Cahill wants to join the Black Panthers.

Or maybe he just wants to buy some school buses for Northern Ireland

RICHARD R. JENNINGS,
So. San Francisco.

Our Viewpoint

'County Council of Councils'

Earlier this month the North County Council of Cities proposed the creation of a "County Council of Councils" which would be made up of the mayors and councilmen of the county's incorporated cities. The new body, it is anticipated, would replace the present Council of Mayors.

One of the advocates of this proposal, Burlingame Councilman Irving S. Amstrup, says that the present method of selecting the mayors of the various cities does not give them the power to speak for their entire council. This, in effect, prevents the Council of Mayors from making decisions until they have discussed pending matters with their councils in order to bring back their opinions at a subsequent meeting of the Council of Mayors.

The new proposal, it is represented, by combining a mayor-council panel could discuss problems and make resolving decisions more quickly for communication to elected officials at state and federal levels.

Last week, the Redwood City Council, numerically larger than other councils in the county, approved the proposal by a four to three vote after a considerable debate.

However, the organization of such a combined body may not be as simple as indicated.

A number of difficulties are immediately apparent and these would have to be cleared up before proceeding.

We do not know of any current law authorizing such an organization or any law that would empower it to make either decisions or commitments. The powers and duties of individual city councils are controlled by both local charters and the general law relating to municipalities. These powers and duties specify that the councils may only conduct public business at regularly or specially called sessions and then, with only a few exceptions, in the presence of the public attendance at such meetings. Joint sessions of city councils are comparatively rare and in cases where they reach agreement each council concerned must still take action separately.

If a number of councils attempted to comply with these regulations in concert the result would almost certainly be a public meeting of unwieldy proportions, possibly with all the troubles that commonly beset council meetings magnified and multiplied. Another stumbling block would be charter and general law provisions that council meetings must be held within the cities concerned and often at a stated place of meeting.

There are other difficulties readily foreseeable. Since disparities in the numerical makeup of councils exist it would be necessary to employ some variation of the unit rule in voting and this would tend to make a small city as powerful as a large one. Over all, in this respect, it is doubtful that any action of the combined council group could be binding on all the cities involved—even if a decision was unanimous.

Furthermore, it does not seem to have been considered that the unincorporated areas of the county also have a stake in any decisions that might be made.

It might be helpful to suggest to the cities that the proposed council of cities should first undergo study by the various city attorneys before individual councils commit themselves, and that the advantages of more informal organization be thoroughly explored.

Samuel Chandler

Nothing Beyond Examination of Critics

Nothing is so sacred to our age that is beyond the examination of critics not evern the churches of America.

Many who are writing about organized religion in America echo the words of Charles Merrill Smith. "A church is for serving the needs of people, and therefore has no business manipulating people so that they will conform to the institution. Churches — Roman, Protestant, or whatever — do not learn this lesson easily."

SAMUEL CHANDLER
Daly City Librarian

Because they have not learned this lesson, Dr. Smith believes — they have become modern corporations with salvation to peddle as a large company sells cars. Gone are the old images — the kingdom, the rock, the city of righteousness; so why not rewrite the hymns in more applicable metaphors. For example Onward Christian Soldiers should become:

"Like a Corporation,
moves the Church once more
execs, we are likened, to those men of yore
Popes and bishops royal, splendid clergy too
Who led the Corporation, then, as now we do."

Although the breezy, irreverent style colors the whole book, the author issues a bitter cry for an end to "corporation christianity." He is offended by the image of the church as interested in real estate values, that "bolsters the Republican Party, encourages the kids to lay off sex and long hair, and fights harder than almost any other institution to curb socialistic tendencies and dangerous cultural experimentation which are blatant threats to our way of life."

"If the Community of Faith has a future," Dr. Smith writes, "its hope lies not in the ecclesiastical institution, no matter how cleverly redesigned and updated. The hope lies in the seminal personalities who have the power to renew it."

AMONG SUCH INDIVIDUALS he cites Pope John XXIII, Bishop Pike, and men in the mold of Martin Luther, John Wesley and St. Francis. Sounding a note of hope he continues, "It is unlikely that the ingenuity of the Almighty is yet exhausted in this regard—and that is the best hope of all."

Thomas Merton wrote on the same theme in his "Contemplation In A World of Action." Father Merton believed that updating monastic practices, and tinkering with liturgies are not enough. He said that in the crisis of identity that America is experiencing, religion must dare to ask radical questions about the purposes of churches and monasteries.

Father Merton was a Trappist Monk who called for new meaning for such old concepts as discipline, authority, obedience, work, solitude, spiritual direction, and common prayer.

He recommended that even monks study with an open mind such quasi-monanistic bodies as hippie communes and Zen societies.

His sentiments are those of Marcus Bach who has written of Asian religions and of the principles of the "Jesus Freaks" in his book "Strangers At The Door." He believes Americans have come to a time of self-challenging . . . of reminding ourselves that we are at a pivotal, transitional point in religious history, "and that now for the first time, the church—my church, your church—must become more precious as an enity and more real as a collective body of believers in spirit and in truth."

COUNTDOWN TO CRUNCH — Crestmoor halfback George Ama (center) did just about everything in Crestmoor's 28-13 win over visiting Half Moon Bay on Friday, but he failed to escape theviolent in tentions of Bret Pattison (69) and Mike McDouglas (89). (Post Photo by Ray Zirkel)

'Instant Replay' Label

By JERRY LITTRELL

Except for the final scores, each Hillsdale-El Camino High School game of the past three seasons has become an "instant replay" carbon copy of one another. The Friday encounter session was no exception.

After two years of frustration, losing one-touchdown decisions, the Colts finally got on the win side against the rebuilding Knights by rallying for a 14-8 victory at Clifford Field in a battle of two Peninsula league champs of last season.

A few minor things are different than last year — El Camino's now familiar one-halfback offense is now manned by a 125-pound surprise named Dave Alvarez. He carried the ball 25 times for 89 yards and one touchdown.

The Colts also have their usual tough defense, only it could be bigger and better this season. And, as usual, the Colt offense did a little stuttering around, never quite getting in gear.

Hillsdale's defense also did a credible job, as usual, and several times it looked as if junior quarterback Rory MacArthur might pass the game wide open. But there isn't too much punch right now in the Knight backfield.

A gutsy call gave the Knights their lone score. With just 30 seconds left in the first half, and trailing 7-0 after Bob Clary had punched over a two-yard burst for the Colts' first score, MacArthur flipped a screen pass right over the onrushing Colt line and Chuck Lucas ran 80 yards unmolested for a touchdown. A tackle-eligible PAT pass to Skip House gave the 8-7 intermission bulge to the Knights.

After a scoreless third period the Colts, who allowed just 33 yards rushing, rallied when Alvarez scored from the three after Mike Solari had recovered a Hillsdale fumble on the Knight 24.

CRESTMOOR 28, HALF MOON BAY 12

John Browne's bodies are far from moulding in the ground, and the San Bruno-based Falcon force will definitely be a decisive factor in what could be a rugged Mid-Peninsula League race.

Adjusting well after a shaky start, the Falcons handled the multi-phase Half Moon Bay offense for a 2-12 victory Friday afternoon at Crestmoor. It was by far the most impressive Falcon opener in many seasons.

Half Moon Bay, which sets a man-in-motion at every opportunity and has a wide variety of short and long passes, appeared ready to blast away from the start. A sure touchdown pass was called back 45 yards on the fourth play of the game, and the tide turned right then.

The Cougars made three mistakes before halftime and three times the Falcons scored. Ed Ama picked off a Frankie Reyes pass on the 43 with two minutes left in the first quarter. One minute into the second period quarterback Jim Jarvis slipped over from the one. On the ensuing kickoff the Cougars fumbled, guard Jim Stewart recovered, and Jarvis capitalized by hitting end Bob Scholl on a 33-yard paydirt pass.

The final half mistake came when a backfield mixup resulted in another HMB fumble, allowing the Falcons a 29-yard touchdown march capped by George Ama's two-yard burst. Ama, G., had a fantastic afternoon — he caught one pass on offense, one more on defense and carried 18 times for 122 yards. He threw three option passes that all should have been caught — but weren't — and made his decision to give up all other sports for football look good yesterday.

SOUTH SF 14, OVERFELT 6

South San Francisco may have the equipment to go a ways this year after an impressive, if low-scoring, effort at rough Overfelt Friday afternoon. Behind the 23 carries of senior Hank Love, who managed 108 yards, the Warriors came out with a 14-6 decision in their opener.

Tom Henkle got the SSF eleven off and flying with a fingertip catch of a 45-yard pass from quarterback Bob Bachtold in the first series, but it was Love who punched over a one-yarder in the third stanza to cap the win.

T.N. 27, WASHINGTON 0

Tiger coach Bob Fisher said a lot of his team's development would depend upon running back Louis Sanchez. His worries might be over if the Friday performance is any indication. The junior runner scampered 56 yards on a punt return, scored on a seven-yard jaunt and caught a 31-yard pass from John Racenelli in leading the Tigers to a 27-0 whitewash of the visiting Eagles Friday.

Tournament

Grand Knight Tom Curr announced that Marian Council No. 3773, Knights of Columbus, will hold their third annual Kings, Queens, and Juniors Bowling Tournament at Westlake Bowl, 99 Southgate, Daly City. The tournament will be held on Sunday, September 26 at 2:00 p.m.

Westmoor-Aragon; Matisi Clan Battle

The generation gap in the Matisi household gets narrower and narrower as the time draws short for the Aragon-Westmoor confrontation this weekend.

This will be the second of three scheduled meetings between coach Pete Matisi of Westmoor and his Aragon-based quarterback son, Dave. The Rams ripped apart Aragon last year and even knocked the then sophomore Matisi out of the game with a gang-sideline tackle. But recently the Aragon quarterback appeared to be in a forgetful mood.

"For the past month all I was hearing was how weak Westmoor was on offense," the elder Matisi said. "Dave said we only had one good end and not much of an offense. He really was needling me about my team. He seems to have changed his tune after this past weekend, though."

The motivating force behind the recent change of attitude was the Westmoor victory Saturday over Lowell, a victory witnessed by the younger Matisi from the stands. The 16-14 victory was even sweeter for the Rams who had suffered a humiliating defeat on a hot, muggy afternoon last year about this time.

The Rams did look good in their initial outing — better in fact than the two-point win might indicate. They featured a balanced attack that garnered 168 ground yards and another 160 aerial yards by quarterback Brad Kearns, who ripened quickly in the warm afternoon sun. After missing three early passes by wide margins, Kearns ended up with eight completions in 15 tries and scored the winning touchdown on a 61-yard scamper.

Buk-Buk Comments on the Blue Offer

THE POST'S SPORTS

There's just no use putting it off. We're going to have to eventually get around to acknowledging one of our more inveterate correspondents, one Lamarr J. Buk-Buk. At least that's how he signs his name. That may not be real, but believe it or not, the letters are. We must, from time to time, reprint his missives or, we imagine, risk a bomb under the hood of our automobile. Not that Mr. Buk-Buk doesn't occasionally have some very good points. Such as the following, which we received several weeks ago:

"Item: When Vida Blue pitched against the Yankees recently, it was announced that all who bore the name of 'Blue' would be admitted free.

"NOW SUPPOSING YOUR NAME WAS BLUE, BUT YOU HADN'T Anglicized it. Let's say, for instance, that your name was Azul, which is Blue in Spanish. If it were Blau, you might be able to get by the gate, but I don't think you could get in with Azul; especially when you were up against the New Yorker's traritional hostile suspiciousness.

"So what do you do? Your name is really Blue, you want to see the game, and you know that Charlie Finley, in his heart of hearts, wants you to see the game, just as much as anyone whose name is spelled Blue.

"SO YOU get in touch with the management of the ballpark and they get in touch with Finley and the next day you read in the newspaper:

"ALL THOSE WHOSE NAME IS BLUE ADMITTED FREE!!!

AND CHARLIE FINLEY SAYS THAT IF YOUR NAME IS BLUE, WHETHER IT'S BLUE IN NORWEGIAN, GREEK, URDU OR PERSIAN OR ANY OTHER LANGUAGE, AS LONG AS IT TRANSLATES INTO BLUE IN ENGLISH YOU GET IN FREE!!

CHARLIE FINLEY WILL NOT BE KNOWN AS ONE WHO DISCRIMINATES AGEINST THE FOREIGN BORN!!

REMEMBER!!! IF YOU NAME TRANSLATES AS BLUE, COME TO YANKEE STADIUM!!!

CHARLIE FINLEY WILL HAVE DOZENS OF EXPERTS WHO SPEAK ALL KNOWN LANGUAGES STANDING BY TO CERTIFY THAT YOUR NAME IS BLUE.

AT GREAT PERSONAL EXPENSE HE IS HAVING THEM FLOWN HERE SPECIAL, JUST TO MAKE CERTAIN THAT NO ONE IS TURNED AWAY WHO MAY LEGITIMATELY ENTER FREE !!!!!

Note: In the event of any dispute between a customer and a language expert all such cases will be submitted to Monte Moore for a ruling. His decision is final."

Thank you, Mr. Buk-Buk. Sometimes you make absolute sense.

SPEAKING OF GREAT hitters (but we weren't speaking of great hitters, you say? . . . well, there are times when you just have to put up with lousy segues), perhaps you forget occasionally, with all the talk of Henry Aaron, for instance, just how truly great were Ted Williams and Babe Ruth.

For example, Ted Williams, it seems at times, is remembered only because he was baseball's last .400 hitter (.406 in 1941). But also consider that the next highest major league batting average since 1941 also belongs to Williams, who hit .388 in 1957. Also consider that when Williams hit that .406, it was the highest batting average since Rogers Hornsby's .424 in 1924. And had Williams NOT hit .406, his .388 would still not have been exceeded by anything since 1931 except Al Simmons' .390. In other words, Ted's .388 would have been the highest batting average in 26 years! (Luke Appling had also hit .388 in 1936). Or, put another way, two of the three highest batting averages in 40 years have been posted by Williams.

Now think about Babe Ruth's 60 homeruns in 1927, and forget that argument that Maris hit his 61 in a 161 game season and Ruth hit his in only a 154 game season.

To understand the real significance of what Ruth did, you must understand how the rest of the men were playing baseball in that era. Ruth, you see, hit 13.5 percent of the entire league's homers in 1927. As a matter of fact, in 1920, when he hit 59, it represented 14.6 percent of the league's homerun output.

When Maris hit his 61, it represented only four percent of the AL's homeruns! To match Ruth's impact on the rest of the league, then, Maris would have had to hit about 200 homeruns!

Yes, Roger Maris had a great year. Ruth had an impossible year.

October 2 Set For SSF Punt Competition

The South San Francisco 1971 Ford NFL Punt, Pass and Kick Competition will be held at Orange Memorial Park on October 2.

The contest is open to grade and junior high school boys, ages eight through thirteen, and is divided into six age groups. Boys will be competing with youngsters of their own age.

It is co-sponsored by Fred Lautze Ford and the South San Francisco Park and Recreation Department. There is no cost, but boys must pre-register on official entry form requiring parents signatures before October 1.

Local winners will go to Zone, District, Area and Division competition, then on to the National Finals at the Super Bowl in New Orleans, if they continue to win.

In 1961, South San Francisco's Pete Saco won the National Championship in the 8-year-old age group and in 1968 South San Francisco's Herman Segelke won the National Championship in the 10-year-old division.

No special purpose footgear, such as football shoes, may be worn. Sneakers are recommended. Local winners in second and third places will receive trophies in each of the six age groups.

Course Designer's Rough Golf

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Robert Trent Jones is reputed to be one of the world's great designers of golf courses even though it is said he has difficulty breaking 90.

To say that his course layouts are among the most frustrating in the country is an understatement—they are obviously designed to drive a golfer out of his head while he tries to drive a white sphere up a fairway.

Jones' latest contribution is the 6700 yard plus 18 hole challenge at Lakeridge near Reno, Nevada.

It was at this course, nestled in the pinetopped mountains south-west of the world's "Biggest Little City," that one-half of tht Third Annual D&J Golf Safari was held last week.

Co-sponsored by Daly City businessmen Dino Donati and George Johnson, and based for its three-day stay at John Ascuaga's Nugget Hotel and Casino in Sparks, the tournament played both the Lakeridge and Washoe courses.

But it was Lakeridge with its gruelling doglegs, ample sandtraps, water and alternating fast and slow greens that finally made experienced golfers practically break down and cry.

Like the soaring temperature under a cloudless sky, scores climbed to withering heights as unbelieving players checked and rechecked their cards.

Low gross for the two day event was awarded to Dr. Ray Henderson with his 154.

Second place was captured by Clayton Chu of Burlingame (157) with third spot going to Ken Skinner for his 15.

In the low net title was Rich Hazelwood (138). Reb Ard and Rudy Benedvidos tied for second place in the low net field with a 142.

The first day found 179 players raring to get underway at Lakeridge (shotgun start) and Washoe (starting times).

The heat and demanding courses combined to keep many inside the cool of the Nugget for the remaining day of play.

Refreshment stands (players called them oases) were set up by Ascuaga and his right hand man, Pete Carr.

Manned by Nugget lovelies, the stands were obviously placed at strategic locations around the courses to take players' minds off the soaring temperature and scores.

And for those players who had difficulty shaking the tragic events of the day out on the course — thanks to Jones — badges worn by participants inside the Nugget proved to be passports to more soothing refreshments.

Most of the business, civic and government "power" of San Mateo County trekked to Reno for the D&J, drawn there by the challenge of playing a new Robert Trent Jones course.

Most had known before they arrived that the odds at Ascuaga's gaming tables were better than breaking the back of a Jones' course.

They were right

Cities in Colma District To Lose Flood Insurance

Flood insurance is being canceled for the cities in the Colma Flood Control District, City Attorney Joe Galligan disclosed to the San Bruno City Council September 13.

The situation leaves the district in a position where the cities will have to hire lawyers to defend them against flood suits.

The major city involved is South San Francisco, but a considerable portion of northern San Bruno, southern Daly City, Colma and a portion of Pacifica are also involved.

When city councilmen were faced with the choice, Monday night, of agreeing to cancel the flood insurance rider, or having their enitre policy canceled, they reluctantly approved canceling the rider. There would be no refund on the policy, they were told.

As their final act before canceling the flood insurance, the Pacific Indemnity Co. recommended a $47,500 settlement in a suit of the residents of Francisco Terrace in South San Francisco, against the Colma Flood Control District. Of this amount, some $1,250 will be paid each by San Bruno, Daly City, the Colma Flood Control District and the county; South San Francisco will pay $5,000, South San Francisco's insurance carrier $25,000 and San Bruno's carrier, $12.500.

Approximately 29 homeowners were parties to the suit caused by overflowing of Colma Creek in 1968.

Judo Signups Today in SSF

Judo classes for beginning and intermediate boys and girls 8 to 16 years of age are being offered by the South San Francisco Park and Recreation Department.

Classes will be held on Tuesday afternoons, 3:30 to 5 p.m. for beginners. All students registering must acquire a judo gi. Information on this will be given by instructor Ben Palacio.

Intermediates, or those who have previously taken judo lessons, may sign up for this class, which will meet on Mondays from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the Magnolia Recreation Center.

The registration fee will cover the entire 10 weeks the program runs. A total of 15 hours of instruction is given.

Registration will be today and tomorrow at the Magnolia Recreation Center, Grand and Magnolia Avenues.

After-School Sports Aided

Recreation activities for seventh and eighth grade students in Pacifica's Laguna Salada School District got a $9,000 boost September 13 from city officials.

James Brian, district superintendent, received approval from the council members to use $9,000 from the community service tax fund, placed there by the school district, to improve the joint school district and city recreation department after-school recreation program.

Dr. Richter to Talk About Earthquakes

If everyone who thinks about earthquakes but assumes there's nothing to be done about them knew the truth, they could look forward to a safer future, David Marin, associate dean and director of Skyline College's Community Services program pointed out in announcing Skyline's 1971 Earthquake series.

Because 1971 has been designated a "banner year for earthquakes," by Washington authorities, Skyline College has invited Dr. Charles Richter, inventor of the Richter Scale to open this fall's program — "Our Restless Neighbors — Earthquake Faults."

Dr. Richter, professor emeritus from the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, will deliver the broad introductory lecture, "Here is An Earthquake," in the Main Theater at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 29.

Noting "the earthquake phenomenon is of particular interest to our college, which is nestled on the fringe of the San Andreas Fault," Marin promised an even more comprehensive offering than the very successful program Skyline presented on this subject in 1970.

Skyline's programs take the audience well beyond the San Andreas fault and the immediate Bay Area, discussing fault lines in general and California's peculiar vulnerability to earthquakes. Included in the 1971 program for example will be aerial photographs of last February's devastating quake in the San Fernando Valley. These were taken personally by Tim Hall of Foothill College, coordinator of both last year's and this year's programs.

"The purpose of this offering is not to alarm but to forewarn," Marin explained, noting that the concluding lecture by Tim Hall on October 20 is titled "Minimizing Earthquake Hazards." On October 6, Dr. M. Clark of the U.S. Geological survey will tell "What Happened at San Fernando," followed a week later by his colleague in the Geological Survey, Dr. Julius Schlocker, who will review the matter of "Bay Area Geology."

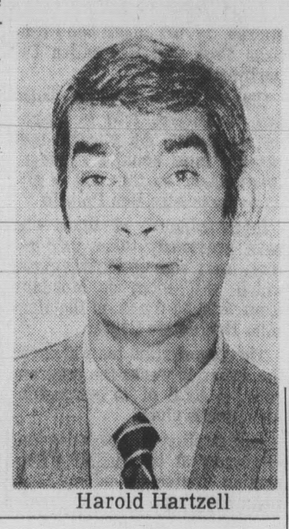

Dr. Charles Richter

Tickets for the entire four part lecture series are available immediately through the office of Community Services, Skyline College, for $5. Individual lecture tickets may also be purchased for $1.50 each at the door, depending on space available.

An all-day "Fault Finding Tour" to observe the interaction between man's works and the Bay Area's active earthquake faults will be offered on Saturday, October 23 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Space on this tour is limited to 80 and those interested may purchase tickets for the tour and the lecture series for $7.

Work itself can become more of a pleasure when one develops a better job understanding of his working relationships with others on the job. This is the theory behind Skyline College's seminar on "Human Relations at Work," Marin said.

Presented in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, this six-part offering is a business-oriented approach to the problem of understanding yourself as well as getting along with others. Special emphasis is placed on the areas of beginning management or the "man in the middle" and the unique problems of dealing with human behavior as a supervisor.

Harold Hartzell

The course will be team-taught by two popular faculty members of Skyline's Business Division, Harold Hartzell and Marc Roberts. Local citizens who completed last Spring's Community Service seminar in Retail Sales remember Mr. Hartzell as one of the exciting instructors of that course. Both have had extensive experience in the business world.

The seminar, which will be held in Room 131 of Building I on the Skyline campus, begins September 23 at 7 p.m. The six sessions will be devoted to "Fundamentals of Organizational Behavior," "Leadership and its Development," "Organizational Environment," "Social Environment," "Communication and Group Processes," and "Operating Activities." For those who wish college credit, one unit is available through Business 149.

If you've ever wondered what to do about that problem wall, or whether to keep that interesting but old piece of furniture that your grandmother gave you, or how to add pizzaz to your decor without straining your budget, then plan to enroll in the six-week Interior Design course being offered at Skyline College this fall.

Taught by interior designer James Stevens, the class is being repeated this Fall after a very enthusiastic community reception last Spring. "Mr. Stevens has the unique capacity to teach general guidelines for creating attractive home interiors while giving personalized attention to all individual decorating problems," Patricia Patterson, Community Services Assistant commented. "We had to turn away applicants for this course last semester and we expect a similar response to this semester's program."

The class begins September 30 at 7:30 p.m. on the Skyline campus. Among topics to be covered are color, atmosphere an style, the history of furniture, effects of space and light, how to choose wallpaper, fabrics and carpeting, lamps and table top art, and the finishing touches that give a room character. One unit of college credit (Art 149) is available.

Postmaster Announces Improved Mail Service

Daly City Postmaster Vincent P. Murphy today identified local areas which are to receive next delivery day servcie for Zip coded first class mail originating within the San Francisco area and deposited by 5 p.m. on weekdays in business areas, and at main thoroughfare collection points.

The areas include San Francisco SC 940-944, Oakland SCF 946-948, San Rafael 949, and extend south to Morgan Hill, north to Petaluma and east to Livermore.

"The Postmaster General has pointed out that this program will affect more than half of all first-class letter mail sent in the United States, Postmaster Murphy said. "So customers of every post office in the country will be benefiting from the new service goal."

Substantially more than half of the 52 billion pieces of first-class mail handled annually are for delivery in the city where deposited or in nearby communities, said Murphy.

Muni Court Question Re-Opened

County supervisors were persuaded Thursday to re-open, at least in a limited way, the question of whether Daly City will get to keep its Municipal Court.

In June of 1970 the board voted to move the court back to the county center in South San Francisco as soon as the $1 million courthouse expansion project was completed. The present target date for completion is December 31.

In recent months, a letter-writing campaign to retain the court has been organized in Daly City. Yesterday, John A. Putkey, attorney for the Daly City Mission Merchants' Association, appeared before the board with a petition which he said contained the signatures of 2,870 persons who want the court to stay in Daly City. Putkey said the Daly City Chamber of Commerce, various service organizations and many individuals helped obtain the signatures.

Putkey told the board that Daly City, with a population of 65,000 compared to South San Francisco's 47,000, should be entitled to a court on the basis of population alone. He said the court has been a busy one and that it costs no more, from an operational point of view, than it would in South San Francisco.

The additional cost of rental in Daly City — $15,000 a year — should be weighed against the loss of convenience to residents of the city, Putkey told the board. Removal of the court, he added, would be "a complete disservice to the people of that area."

Board Chairman James V. Fitzgerald told Putkey that the decision to move the court was based on economy and efficiency and that reversing the decision would mean that space would be going to waste in the South San Francisco center.

Supervisor Robert St. Clair, former mayor of Daly City but now a resident of Millbrae, recalled that he was the only member of the board who voted against moving the court last year. He urged his fellow supervisors re-consider.

The board finally agreed to re-open the matter to the extent that County Manager M. D. Tarshes will be asked to determine whether there is any new evidence that needs to be heard.

Historical Meeting Set

The Millbrae Historical Society will open its fall season September 29, at the Millbrae Public Library, according to Joan Brucato, program chairman for the society.

The speaker for the evening will be one of the most outstanding historians on Early California History, Dr. Peter T. Conmy, presently Historian for the City of Oakland, and recently retired as Oakland City Librarian.

Dr. Conmy's topic will be "Glimpses of Early San Mateo County History". This will include much of Millbrae's early history.

Dr. Conmy has been historian for the Native Sons of the Golden West for over 25 years and he is also a noted writer and lecturer on California History. Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

Pacifica Buys Site on Time

Installment purchase of a fire station site by the City of Pacifica was agreed to September 13 at a rate of 7 per cent interest on the unpaid balance.

Councilmen on August 23 agreed to the purchase price of $73,650 for a 1.7 acre parcel, a part of White Field on Linda Mar Boulevard.

At that time, however, they wanted only to put $30,000 down and pay off the balance June 21, 1972.

George Edsell, representing the owner, Pillar of Fire Church, who took the counter proposal to his clients, last week said the purchase arrangement was agreeable with 7 per cent interest on the unpaid balance.

The city attorney was instructed to draft the proper papers and proceed with transfer of title.

Mother's Wish Granted; Child To Be Cremated

By VIRGIL WILSON

Mrs. Jacqueline Collum will get her wish.

Her oldest daughter, 13-year-old Patricia, will be cremated and her ashes will be scattered at sea.

Garden Chapel in South San Francisco will take care of it for the $228.75 county allowance for indigent burials, although the actual cost will be about $50 more than that. A spokesman for the mortuary said a double-check was made with Coroner Paul B. Jensen, who gave his assurances that the arrangement was satisfactory.

Jensen had enphasized that Mrs. Collum could make any arrangements she desired for disposal of the girl's remains within the limits of the county contribution. Mrs. Collum, however, became convinced that Jensen opposed cremation and that if she insisted on arrangements that would cost more than the county allowance, the entire allowance would be withdrawn.

Mrs. Collum was not the only one who was confused. The Post made a random sampling of morticians in the county to test their understanding of county policies on cremation. One director said flatly that "the county takes care of burials but not cremations." Another mortician said "there's no such thing as a county cremation." He added, however, that he meant that his funeral home has never been asked to cremate at county expense and that there was no uniform county policy on cremation as far as he was aware.

Other directors said that they have done cremations in indigent cases and have voluntarily absorbed any extra costs that might be involved.

Jensen said he is forbidden by law to order cremation on his own but that he does not object if the next of kin is willing to sign the order and able to make the arrangements with the funeral home.

Patty died Sunday of a degenerative neurological affliction that had run its inexorable course from the age of 5 and left her sightless, speechless and completely helpless. She left behind two sisters and a brother, all of whom suffer the same disease and whose own bodies are in varying stages of deterioration.

Mrs. Collum, however, said she never gave up hope on Patty and will never give up hope that some cure will be found for her surviving children.

The mother, who is divorced, is on welfare and must depend upon the county to take care of Patty's body because she has no money.

Dozens of offers of money were made to Mrs. Collum Friday by readers. Most of them were offers to pay the $50 difference and were turned down by Mrs. Collum because she believed that acceptance of the money would mean that the $228.75 county allowance would be withdrawn.

Among the offers were two from San Mateo pilots who offered to fly the ashes to sea in their own planes at no cost. Another came from a group of Aragon High School students and Red Cross youth who offereed to raise money for the cremation but wanted to be sure that it would not be subtracted from Mrs. Collum's welfare grant.

Mrs. Collum was holding Patty in her arms, giving her a drink of juice, when she coughed and appeared to die. The 34-year-old mother tried to revive her with mouth to mouth resuscitation and city firemen and police and an ambulance crew later assisted—but it was too late.

Mrs. Collum was told 18 months ago that the girl was in the terminal stages of the disease. After that the only treatment was medication to ease her pain.

"But I didn't expect Patty to die," Mrs. Collum said today. "I just refused to give up hope. Just because I don't know the answer doesn't mean that there is no answer. All I can do is hope against hope that someone, some place will come up with the answer."

Mrs. Collum is willing to have the tragic story of her family told in the hope that somehow it will spur research that will help her surviving children.

She also hopes that the story will bring changes in the operation of the county coroner's office that will spare other mothers the ordeal she has gone through in arranging for the disposal of Patty's body. Because Mrs. Collum, a divorcee, is necessarily on welfare, she must depend upon the coroner's office.

She wants the remains to be cremated and the ashes scattered at sea but says she has been told by a woman employe of the coroner's office that cremations are not permitted in welfare cases because the coroner, Paul B. Jensen does not believe in it.

Jensen had denied that he holds any such belief or that he has instructed his employes to say so. In the Collum case, he said, the only thing holding up disposal is that cremation would cost $50 more than the $228.75 he is allowed for county burials.

"I cannot and will not order cremation myself," Jensen said "but if Mrs. Collum wants to work it out with the mortuary for the $228.75, I would certainly have no objection."

"I've lost a daughter," she said, "but she was very ill for a long time.

"Now Patty can walk and talk and see and hear and do all the things she couldn't do before. She had to go on to something better then she had on this Earth.

"I don't want any monument to a dead body. It's just a shell. Patty is not there.

"I do believe there is something beyond what we have here. I'm sure it's true."

Mrs. Collum said she did not think it fair that certain persons, just because they are on welfare, should be denied a choice between burial and cremation, under any circumstances.

Mrs. Collum's faith in a hereafter and her hopes that help will be found for her three remaining children keep her going and help her to bear her terrible burden. She doesn't consider herself a religious person, however.

"Religion," she said, "is something you live day to day in dealing with those around you. It is not just something you talk about."

The youngest daughter, Crystal, is a first-grade student at El Rancho School. Her vision is starting to fail and she is beginning to experience emotional problems. The boy, Chuck, is completely blind and attends special classes at Daniel Webster School. Kathleen is blind and is beginning to have difficulty with her speech. She was able to get through the fourth grade but is confined to the home in the Winston Manor section.

Jacqueline Collum

The disease is said to be hereditary but Mrs. Collum knows of no other instance of it on either side of the family.

Her husband, Lawrence, from whom she was divorced six years ago, lives in Texas.

Gunman Robs S.S.F. Store

A lone gunman robbed a South San Francisco grocery store on Friday, forcing nine hostages into a walk-in refrigerator

Police said the amount of cash loss taken from the Safeway Store, 910 Mission Road, is undetermined, pending an audit.

According to authorities, a man came up to an employe at approximately the 9 p.m. quiting time and produced what appeared to be a .45-caliber pistol.

He rounded up all employes and the few customers in the store and herded them into the cooler, taking the assistant manager to the cash register.

The suspect was described as being about 25, 5-foot-9, weighing 185, with dark hair, a mustache and full beard.

Celebrities Ringside At Finocchio's Nitery

Actress June Lockhart, of movie and TV fame, including the Miss America pageant and Tournament of Roses spectacular, was a recent ringsider at Finocchio's nightclub, which features the world's greatest female impersonators. After seeing two performances, Miss Lockhart went backstage to congratulate the members of the cast, and said it was one of the best revues she has seen in many years . . . If you would like to know how Councilman Hugh Wayne of San Mateo keeps in such great shape, it's very possibly because he's a frequent seafood diner at Vince Licata's Italian and Sea Food restaurant. Each noonday (Monday through Friday) Vince's features a luncheon special (in addition to the regular menu), and the portions are enormous. Friday's special is Baked Fish and is served with a choice of clam chowder or minestrone soup or luncheon salad with French dressing, and coffee. If you're big on oysters, you've come to the right place . . . Ken Kidwell, president of Eureka Federal Savings & Loan, hosted a gourmet dinner meeting for executive officers of all branches in the luxurious Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery, in downtown San Francisco.

JOAN STEELE, who fronts her own jazz trio, is part of the nightly rotating entertainment policy now in effect in the Deacon Brodie Lounge at the Royal Coach Motor Hotel in San Mateo. Joan, with bass man Leroy Vinnegar (left) and drummer Tom Alberging, alternate throughout the evening from 7:30 p.m., with singer-guitarist Hank Falconer. The result is a complete evening of continuous live entertainment.

Charlie Blackwell Trio Sounds

Direct from Lake Tahoe, the Charlie Blackwell Trio provides a steady change of pace and sound in the luxurious Villa Lounge at San Mateo's Villa Hotel. Charlie and his two musically strong sidemen present their unique brand of dance sounds nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 p.m. . . . Ken Parrett and Dorothy Pace are warm, gracious people who receive great pleasure in watching their Red Cottage dinner guests enjoy themselves. This is one of the main reasons for the outstanding success of their Menlo Park restaurant . . . Bill Ellis, the Sportsman' lounge headliner with the Family Reunion at the Hillsdale Inn, has been a professional musician since he was 16 years old. At that time he was lead guitarist and vocalist for a group known as The Invaders. S.F. Bruno's Sports Events

You'd think you were seated in Candlestick Park the way baseball conversation goes on at Bruno's in the Mission. With divisional playoffs and the World Series coming up, fans have pegged Bruno's as headquarters for the pre- and post-game get-togethers, second-guessing the Manager's hunches and filling the air with baseball lingo. If the Giants make it, Bruno's will probably add on a new wing . . . Wilfried and Marion Blarer, hosts of Burlingame's Matterhorn Swiss restaurant, take delight in preparing Swiss and Continental dishes fit for royal dining. House specialties are Cheese Fondue and Fondue Bourguignonne. Dinner is served full course or a la carte. Dessert suggestions include such sweet-tooth fancies as Peach Melba, Ananas au Kirsch and Black Forest Cake . . . The Shadows' Banquet Room, a showplace for festive banquet dining, has its own private bar and dance floor. So that group meetings will not effect the normal service of The Shadows of San Mateo, the spacious dining facility has its own modern kitchen and rotisserie. New Entertainment Schedule

Jack Menzie, co-owner of Whiskey Hill, the newest entry on the Peninsula's club scene, has announced a new entertainment schedule for the next few weeks. Just signed up for an indefinite run is a group called Clear Day, a five piece combo featuring a stunning gal vocalist. Among their recent gigs was a successful stint at the Cabana-Hyatt House in Palo Alto. The group will perform nightly, Tuesdays through Saturdays, at this new Burlingame bistro . . . Taste tip: The Irifune Dinner (curried lobster, served with suimono (clear broth) and sunomono (salad with vinegar dressing) as served at Toshio Kiyohara's Irifune Japanese restaurant. Also included is steamed rice, green tea and dessert . . . Venison was the fare last Monday night at the Black Stag restaurant when manager Arnie Ramirez hosted a feast for many of the restaurant's regular patrons. Among the guests were several Belmont city officials and other prominent businessmen from the area. Chef Frank Orsi prepared the venison stew with culinary excellence.

Augie Rosasco, the 'Great White Hunter'

Augie Rosasco, Exposition Fish Grotto domo, is quite a hunter. Augie took several of his cronies up to his "Calistoga igloo" and, venison bound, headed for the Lake County hills. Suddenly he spotted what he claims to this day was a cross-eyed deer. Aug raised his Winchester but didn't shoot. Both of them just stood there staring at each other. Finally the deer became bored with the stare-out and took a hike. What Augie didn't realize was staring into those crossed eyes for 10 minutes had taken its toll. The orbs slipped Augie into a state of deep hypnosis. Luckily, a doctor was in the party. The doc, well up on hypnosis, gently massaged Augie's brow and snapped his fingers before his nose. Aug's conscious mind immediately took over but left him standing there wondering where the 10 minutes had gone. This story was reported by popular publicist George Taylor, and I sort of think we should snap fingers in front of his eyes. Although I do know Augie Rosasco is quite a hunter.

OKTOBERFEST U.S.A. brings thousands of gaily costumed people to the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton each fall for the feasting, folk-dancing and Old World entertainment of this Bavarian Beer Festival. UBAC Multiplying Dollars

The United Bay Area Crusade today is studying a New Directions program of allocations for 29 day care centers — two in San Mateo County — that will enable it to spend three federal dollars for every charity dollar used.

Mrs. Carl Benninghoven of Hillsborough, co-chairman of the UBAC Day Care Committee, said today, "We are multiplying voluntary dollars by the tax-supported dollars for a much needed, unduplicated program in our community."

The Day Care Committee's recommendations on allocations to the agencies who would provide day care were put in the hands of the Concentrated Services Committee, which will recommend on the allocations at a meeting of the UBAC Board of Directors September 15.

Mrs. Benninghoven explained that $700,000 is available under a program of New Directions this year. It will allocate money in four areas of priority: day care services, drug abuse, and neighborhood services this year; and comprehensive health care in 1972.

A drug abuse panel will meet later this month. The neighborhood services panel is to meet later.

Just how much of the available money will go to day care centers is not certain at this point, she said, but she felt it will be a new approach that will benefit greatly low income groups and particularly welfare recipients under new welfare programs.

The day care program will allow working mothers to be insured of care for their young children from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. The federal government provides three dollars for every local dollar spent, providing that the majority of the children come from welfare, ex-welfare or potential welfare homes.

Thus, the UBAC program of assistance will help the larger welfare program of returning those involved to useful work, Mrs. Benninghoven explained. Mothers who are in training will, as soon as they receive employment, make arrangements after 40 to 60 days for their children elsewhere, so as to make way for children from other welfare homes.

But it's not a baby-sitting program. Mrs. Benninghoven explained that it is an enrichment program for the children. They will have breakfast, lunch and snacktime, have a nurse, dental-vision tests, and the availability of a staff social worker to assist both children and families.

Agencies involved, in addition to federal supervision and meeting UBAC and federal requirements, will be visited frequently by UBAC staff and volunteers, she indicated.

In addition to two in San Mateo County (one is in East Palo Alto and the other in Menlo Park), there are seven in Alameda, 12 in San Francisco, six in Contra Costa and two in Marin counties, she said.

Mrs. Benninghoven said 10 are in the planning stage. The others are operating but need money. Some have exhausted their foundation grants, she said, and no longer can qualify for Title Four Federal money unless they get local funding.

Many of the agencies applying are on waiting lists, she said, and so far have only been able to handle a core group.

The centers have a five-day week and must provide a high quality staff, including teachers, nutritionists, nurse and social worker.

UBAC checks out every application, looking into by-laws, qualifications of staff, fiscal responsibility, non-profit aspects sketches of facilities, program and even job descriptions and personnel manuals, she said.

"I spent all day recently at one of these centers," she said.

"We follow up with staff expertise, making such recommendations as to whether cost per child is too high, whether an agency can share workers with similar nearby agencies, and how one might cut administrative costs."

The New Directions program is expected to increase to three million dollars, she said, in the coming years.

Airport Floodlights Planned

Nineteen towering floodlights are to be installed at San Francisco International Airport to help light up the aircraft that get larger every year.

And, if everything goes well, the lights, mounted on top of the 100-foot tall towers, will lower themselves to the ground when light bulbs must be replaced.

Possibly, everything will not go well. Airports Commissioner John A. Sutro Sept. 7 afternoon questioned recommended bids for constructing the towers.

One bid, Sutro noted, would have added $8,250 to one company's existing contract to erect three light poles.

Another bid would have added $49,802 to another company's existing contract to erect three light poles.

Another bid would have added $49,802 to another company's contract to erect 16 towers.

"This is $2750 for each of three, and $3100 for each of 16," said Sutro, "that doesn't seem right."

Airport staffers reported that the light fixtures would be identical on each of the poles, and that identical elevator equipment is to be supplied under the differing bids.

Commissioners refused to act on the bids, and asked for further staff investigation.

Demolition of one of the old Pan American buildings at the north end of the field, and razing of Cargo Building One, to make room for the new North Terminal, were approved, and bids will be sought.

The Commission approved United Air Lines' plans to spend 1,270,000 to install a DC-10 docking at its Maintenance Base, and to modify fuel facilities.

Commission President William E. McDonnell, re-elected earlier in the meeting, asked for a staff report on airline construction and spending, compared to airport expense for construction, during the current expansion project.

Picture Reveals Mood of America

Lost Generation, the latest release from World Wide Pictures, will be shown today at Good News Chapel, South San Francisco at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge.

Filmed in Eastmancolor, Lost Generation utilizes multiple screen images and a probing documentary style to investigate attitudes of dissent, violence, the mood of America. It offers answers that can be found by this generation as they face the decisions of life.

According to the Reverend Donald P. Wertz, pastor of Good News Chapel, the opinions of both young and old, urban and rural, rich and poor, are brought to the screen as the camera focuses on people of various backgrounds throughout the Nation.

Location shots were filmed in Alaska, the Southern states, on the farms and in the small towns of mid-America, and in the dying Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco.

The feature length film includes special appearances of Billy Graham, Art Linkletter and Jack Webb. Highlights from some of Dr. Graham's crusade sermons point to the solution to the problems facing America.

Linkletter, whose daughter Diane died as the result of the use of drugs, discusses drug usage in America, and points to what is being done voluntarily by many teen-agers to combat the problem. Webb states his views on the role of the police officer and his relationship to the laws of our society.

S.M. Labor Supports Regional Plan

The Central Labor Council of San Mateo County, AFL-CIO, has released the following statement in support of the proposed Bay Area Regional Government.

"The Council of Mayors of San Mateo County is doing a disservice to the public by opposing AB 1057, the Regional Government proposal.

"This bill is one of the most widely supported and beneficial pieces of legislation ever proposed for the benefit of the people living in the Bay Area. It is supported by State Senator Gregorio, and by Assemblymen Ryan and Arnett. It is supported by business and industry and by the Central Labor Council. It is even supported by the Executive Board of ABAG, the Association of Bay Area Governments.

"The Mayors claim the bill would usurp the power of local government, but this is simply not true. AB 1057 would create a planning agency which would work with the local governments to develop a Master Plan for the Bay Area.

"It has been claimed that the bill would raise property taxes, but the bill specifically prohibits the use of the property tax to fund the agency.

"This bill will be good for people who live and work in the Bay Area. It will protect our environment, reduce pollution, improve transportation and provide more parks and open space. It deserves the strong support of the people of San Mateo County."

Open House At Damien

An Open House was held recently at Damien House, the long delayed social center at 983 Linden Avenue in South San Francisco.

The renovated house now has a landscaped rear yard where an organic garden is the focal point, updated facilities which allows 40 persons and seven staff members to be in the center at one time and a special free school in operation.

Headed by Dr. Leo Sach as president of the board of directors, with Jerry Krawetz, the center's 23-year-old director handling the drop-in ounselling and other staff members including Sparky Harlen, Wendy Heckerouth, Paul Willis, Bruce Gifford and Maurice Villa. The group is now seeking additional staff members and local volunteers.

The free school features classes by volunteer-experts in organic gardening, arts and crafts, photography, yoga and Bible study. Additional classes will be offered.

Besides the 24-hour drop-in center, Damien House is "an involvement for those who want to get involved," said Maurice Villa. "It's a place for positive energy; a place to grow."

Krawetz issued thanks to local merchants for their aid in renovating the building and helping with the opening of the center.

Damien House has been attempting to open for several years. Its first try for a permit was denied. The second application was granted but subject to approval of various health and safety agencies. Major overhaul of the building was accomplished by volunteer help and by the staff members.

Damien has been working closely with various county agencies including the North County Mental Center, reported Krawetz.

BETTER BUSINESS

By LORENE BEASLEY
Better Business Bureau

The Fair Credit Reporting Act, which became effective April 25, 1971, was designed to insure fair and accurate reporting of information regarding consumers.

The following questions and answers appear in a pamphlet being distributed jointly by the Federal Reserve Board, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and are applicable to the operations of financial institutions subject to the enforcement authority of these agencies.

Q. May a financial institution obtain a consumer report from a consumer reporting agency in connection with a consumer's application for an extension of credit?

YES. Reports may be obtained for this purpose as well as certain other legitimate business purposes. Reports may also be obtained in connection with the review or collection of an account, in connection with employment, or the underwriting of insurance.

Q. Does a financial institution which uses a consumer report have any new responsibilities to the consumer?

YES. If a financial institution denies employment or if it denies credit or insurance for personal, family or household purposes, or if it increases the cost, even partially because of information in a consumer report from a consumer reporting agency, it must make disclosures to the consumer. It must advise him orally or in writing that information in the report caused or contributed to the denial or increase in cost, and inform him of the address of the consumer reporting agency issuing the report. The financial institution is not required to disclose the nature of the information in the report.

Q. What would constitute a "denial" of credit?

If any condition is imposed, without which credit would not be extended, and it is imposed because of information in the consumer report, there is a "denial which would require disclosure." This would include cases where a larger down payment, or a shorter maturity, a co-signer, guarantor, or additional collateral is required as a condition of extending credit. If a consumer applies, for example, for a credit card limit of $1,500, and only $1,000 is approved, because of information in a consumer report, a "denial" has occurred.

Q. Does the financial institution have any responsbilities to the prospective employee if employment is denied on the basis of a consumer report?

YES. If employment is denied, even partially on the basis of information in a consumer report from a consumer reporting agency, the individual must be given the name and address of the consumer reporting agency making the report. However, if employment is denied because of information from a source other than a consumer reporting agency, no disclosures are necessary.

Broadmoor Presbyterians Have Assistant Minister

The Broadmoor Presbyterian Church of 377-7th Street, Daly City, has announced the appointment of Stephen D. Golden Jr., as assistant minister, beginning October 1.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Golden is a third year student at the San Francisco Theological Seminary at San Anselmo.

This will be for him a year of practical training in the local church as he shares leadership and gains experience in ministry with the congregation and the pastor, the Rev. Herbert C. Tweedie.

Sunday, Golden will lead the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship services and preach on the subject, "What is Real." Meg Cummins will sing a solo and the choir the anthem, "When Jesus Wept," by William Billings with George Hutto directing.

The guest organist in the absence of Carl Eagle will be James Whitlow.

The Sunday School is held during both services.

Eighty members of the local congregation, including the pastor, will be attending the local church's fifth annual Church Family Conference this weekend, Friday evening through Sunday, at the Mt. Hermon Christian Conference Grounds near Santa Cruz.

The 550 total attendance is with the congregations of the First Presbyterian Churches of Richmond, Rodeo and Concord.

The conference speaker is the Rev. Dr. David Hubbard, president of Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena.

Suspect Held For Burglary

The second man of a pair wanted as suspects in a Burlingame burglary, was arrested Friday in San Francisco.

Dennis San Miguel was arrested by Inspector Alfred Caviglia on a warrant charging him with burglary, and setting bail at $1250.

When arrested, said police, San Miguel held a "balloon" of heroin and said he had "a $70 a day habit."

San Miguel had been sought since the day before, when a Bayshore Boulevard woman reported someone stealing her color television set.

Police said the two men had been seen outside the apartment when they dropped the set and returned to pick it up.

Inspector Caviglia followed the car across Broadway overpass, but it stopped suddenly and two men fled on foot.

Both San Miguel, and Lonnie Dale Rose of South San Francisco, who was arrested earlier, were traced through the vehicle's registration.

Far East Duty

USS HENRY TUCKER — Navy Petty Officer Second Class Walter A. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustaf S. Johnson of 1350 Jenevein Ave., San Bruno, is deployed to theWestern Pacific aboard the destroyer USS Henry Tucker, operating with the U.S. Seventh Fleet.

While in the Far East, he wll visit such ports as Hong Kong and Singapore, and such countries as Japan, Taiwan, and the Republic of the Philippines.

His ship, homeported at San Diego, is on her 18th visit to the Orient since commissioning in 1945.

He is a 1968 graduate of the College of San Mateo in San Mateo.

Graduate

MILLINGTON, Tenn. — Navy Airman Apprentice Kenneth B. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Smith of 508 Bayview, Millbrae, has graduated from four weeks of intensive training with the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit at the Naval Air Station, Memphis, Millington, Tenn.

He has completed the first phase of the Navy's "Four-to-Ten-Month" active duty program, and has been ordered to one of the Navy's specialized aviation schools.

Smith is a graduate of Capuchino High School, Millbrae, and attended the College of San Mateo, San Mateo.

16 Week Course

FT. ORD — Army Private Jesse J. Garcia, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moises T. Garcia, 157 E. Vista, Daly City, is assigned to Ft. Ord, where he is training under the volunteer army field experiment.

The new concept, called Volar, combines basic and advanced individual training into a single 16-week program. Decentralized instruction at the unit level and a reduction of formations and inspections gives the soldier more time to train and increased off-duty time. Fewer restrictions on off-duty travel and improved living facilities are other benefits of the Volar concept.

Pvt. Garcia began his training on July 23 and is scheduled to complete his final phase on Sept. 24.

Senate Panel to Study Beach

The fate of North Montara Beach, just south of Devil's Slide, may be decided by the Senate Natural Resources committee this week — but the lineup for and against will take a different twist.

Property owners in the area have joined with the developer, Deane and Deane, Inc. against conservationist groups and against state acquisition of the 33-acre beach and adjacent flatlands between the surf and Cabrillo Highway.

The problem, as the local residents see it, is that the present state plan calls for a paved 1000-car parking lot, which would take most of the bluff area above the beach.

The Senate committee hearing next week is to consider Senate Bill 1099, by Senator Arlen F. Gregorio (D-San Mateo), which would restore a $315,000 cut of a state matching grant for purchase of the Montara beach property.

Mel Bosnos, spokesman for the Association for Better Coastside Development (no connection with a Los Angeles based organization with the same initials) said nearly 80 per cent of the property owners in the area are for the golf course plan proposed by Deane and Deane, Inc., owners of the old McNee Ranch property.

"We sent petitions with nearly 600 names to all legislators and we visited them in Sacramento to ask them to look at the proposal more closely," he explained.

San Mateo County supervisors appropriated $315,000 and requested matching funds from the state to buy the beach and headlands west of Highway 1. Residents of the area objected because no public hearings were held in the five days between the time the issue was raised and county funds were voted. Adjoining property owhers should have had the right to evaluate the plan, they say.

The county funds are now in limbo since the state appropriation was taken out of the budget last month.

"Conservationists have flatly said the parking lot plan is dead — we think that's premature. To approve the plan as it still stands," Bosnos said, "would only mean we have to fight the issue through another set of hearings."

Deane and Deane Vice President Jim Kueblebeck says the choices for the company are clear cut. Unless they can put the 17th and 18th holes of the championship golf course (designed by Arnold Palmer) and the lodge west of Highway 1, the course cannot be built. And, he adds, the Deanes did not plan the course in order to "sell houses." If the firm can't build the course there, it will be forced to go back to the existing zoning under the Montara-Moss Beach general plan, which could result in a more conventional kind of housing subdivision, Kueblebeck said.

In addition, he noted, the prpposed $630,000 allocation is "substantially inadequate" to purchase the property.

Ryan Talks In Pacifica

"We must do a far better job preparing the children of the future, for the future," according to Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan.

In what amounted to a preschool pep talk for some 400 Laguna Salada school teachers Ryan (D-SSF) stressed the importance of "teaching our kids to cope with the enormous changes that will occur during their lives."

"As we get older," Ryan said "it is all too easy to be safe and comfortable in our old days and approaches and we must be careful not to reject new ideas merely because they are new."

"The young people are testing our system and our values and many of the questions that they raise will be with them when they take over. Many of those that feel so alienated are victims of our own inability to prepare them for the realities of our society."

Low Oxygen Killed Fish

Low oxygen content of water resulting from a poor flow between the bay and Redwood Shores undoubtedly accounts for the high fish kill during the weekend, a State Department of Fish and Game official reports.

Max Krueger, area warden for the Department of Fish and Game in Belmont, said that tests have disclosed a low dissolution of oxygen in the water in the area where the fish were found. He attributes this to physical conditions in which the water flow between the bay and the canal serving Neptune Beach and Pavilion Lagoon is "very restricted."

Panel Clears Ryan Bill

The State Senate Education Committee Wednesday voted to approve an experimental program using the voucher system in selected school systems in California.

The bill, AB 150, is the work of Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan of South San Francisco.

In essence, his bill would offer four school districts in the state the chance to use Office of Economic Opportunity funds to try out the program.

Unter the voucher plan, parents would be given vouchers equal to the district's average daily attendance funding which they could use to finance their children's education at the school of their choice.

The vouchers, when redeemed, would be paid with funds allocated through the OEO.

Ryan's measure is a controversial one because it radically breaks with the past and sets up actual competition between all schools, public and private.

Although the bill cleared the Education Committee, it still must win the approval of the Senate Finance Committee and then the full Senate.

Rug Store Hit by Fire

A fire in a Daly City rug store Thursday afternoon resulted in an estimated $7,500 structural damage and a loss of an estimated $10,000 in contents.

Fire units responded to The Rug Men store, 2750 Junipero Serra, at 6:45 p.m., finding a blaze in the office area in the rear section of the store.

Authorities said a cigaret left burning is suspected as the cause.

Rt. 380 Work Restrained

A temporary restraining order is prohibiting the State Division of Highways from continuing any work on extension of the San Bruno Freeway route west from Junipero Serra Freeway.

The state has been ordered to appear in Superior Court at Redwood City today at 9:30 a.m. to show cause why the order should not be made permanent pending outcome of a citizen group's petition effort to block routing of the freeway through Crestmoor Canyon west of San Bruno.

Superior Judge J. A. Branson issued the show cause order Wednesday, but attorney Theodore Long had to go to another judge, Robert D. Miller, for the temporary restraining order.

The Division of Highways is prohibited by the order from infringing or destroying or removing any of the natural growth along the proposed route, where the state has started to make test borings.

Plaintiff in the suit is Mrs. Sylvia Gregory, head of the group which is circulating petitions seeking to force an election to let the residents decide whether the freeway should be permitted to continue along its proposed route. The petitioners contend it would do substantial and irreparable harm to the natural environment. Deadline for submission of the petition for verification of signatures by the county clerk's office is October 26.
